SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 21 —Travel becomes more swift and convenient, daily; you go where you want to go, as fast as you want to go, anywhere on earth.

If the intelligence, common sense and character of human beings kept pace with engineering and scientific speed achievement, this would be a world worth while.

Pleasant trip with W. R. Hearst in one of his planes, from San Simeon south to Los Angeles yesterday, in two hours of leisurely flying, about ten thousand feet up, Pacific Ocean on your right, mountains on the left.

The old way was two hours by automobile from San Simeon to San Luis Obispo, then all night on the train to Los Angeles.

This morning, with "Jimmy" Dixon of Los Angeles, from Los Angeles to this fine city, one hundred and twenty-six miles in two hours and a quarter, not airplane speed, but faster than trains.

You should travel this way soon, for the San Diego Fair opens May 29, and you should be here for the opening, spend two weeks at least, allowing for a few excursions into interesting Old Mexico, just south of this city's limits, then start north and travel over thirteen hundred miles of the world's finest roads to Seattle, stopping at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland and all the big and little places between.

Take that trip and you will really know something about your country: come the Southern route, through New Orleans, along the Gulf, return by one of the Northern routes, or through the Panama Canal.

The trip to be made as economically or as extravagantly as you please, by air, rail, boat, or motor, in a spic-and-span little 1935 automobile. It is cheaper than staying at home. In any case, to spend your fifty-nineteent dollars, wisely, now is better than waiting for them to drop to ten cents.

Trying to describe what it means to drive along this coast is useless. You must see it. This morning you would have noticed various new encampments of soldiers, with emplacements of machine guns, pointing out to sea, for target practice; scores of shiny new army trucks spic-and-span officers and men.

Soon the army will have some grand maneuver, to prove that it is ready for war. Of course, any real war would fly over that earnest army, dropping a few spare bombs—explosive and gas—as it passed. It is none the less praiseworthy of the army to try. If every soldier should shoot at once, one wing of one plane might be hit, although Rickenbacker, our best air fighter, tells you:

"We never even thought about that anti-aircraft stuff. We were too busy with planes close by."

As regards defense for this country, maneuvers by a regiment of white rabbits, armed with lettuce leaves, or a platoon of American taxpayers, "dragging ball and chain," as Mr. De Casseres puts it, would be just as useful. The brave soldiers might yell at the enemy planes, bound for San Francisco, Chicago or New York, "Come on down and fight." But the planes would not come down.

On the edge of San Diego, with many tents and wagons with bright pictures of bon constrictors swallowing zebras you observe two philosophical elephants swinging their trunks, their backs toward the ocean, eating alfalfa. How well they represent the Republican party, standing with its back toward the ocean of new facts, waiting for old times to come back.

One interesting fact about flying. It enables you to "lose your shadow." In ancient days of superstition, when belief in an actual devil, with hoofs and horns, frightened the superstitious, it was said that men or women accused of dealings with Satan that they cast no shadow as they walked in the sunlight. The shadow, in some mysterious manner represented the soul, and he who had sold his soul to the devil could not cast a shadow. In an airplane you lose your shadow, as you rise higher and higher. At one thousand feet up, you see the plane's shadow, on the mountainside, as big as a wheelbarrow. Two thousand feet up it is as small as a hen, and one thousand feet higher it vanishes. You sail through the air casting no shadow, which would have worried the ancient superstitious.

Something here, tomorrow, about this San Diego Fair, which you must SURELY SEE, when it is one o'clock here it is four p. m. in New York, and if "copy" reaches them later, Cobb-lents and Karpf, in the New York American office, on the edge of the other little ocean, imitate Ambrose Bierce's lion, that "roared like distant thunder."

4 Arrested in 'Love Weed' Cigarette Drive

ITALY RECRUITS 500,000

'LOVE Weed' DRIVE

4 MEN SEIZED IN SOUTH END

The new dope squad of Boston and state police cracked down on the "Mexican love weed" cigarette trade today.

The cigarettes were selling fast to auto parties of youths and girls at South End curbstones according to police.

Informed that a large shipment was due today by train, in a disguised container, police established a watch at the railroad terminals.

The cigarettes are filled with leaves of the marajuana weed, large quantities of which are now being secretly grown in this country, some in New England and even in vacant lots in Providence.

The four men arrested were taken to headquarters for questioning on the trade. All the arrests were made on street corners.

The raiders said these men were seen handing packages to auto parties.

The new dope squad has made nine arrests in four days.

Federal authorities conferred with Police Commissioner McSweeney regarding future plans yesterday. There will be no spectacular raids, but a relentless clean-up of individuals engaged in the trade, it was announced.

Lieutenant Benjamin Wall leads the squad, which includes Sergeants John Willard and Thomas Joyce, two plainclothes men and two State troopers.

Detroit, March 22 (AP)—Martin J. Insull, freed of charges which developed from the collapse of the utilities empire built by his brother, Samuel, was deported to Canada today as a British subject.

MILLENS May Win DELAY

HIGHEST COURT TO HEAR PLEA

The Millen brothers and Abe Faber, machine gun slayers, will not forfeit their lives to the state at the time now set by the court, it was indicated today.

Action of the United States Supreme Court, as announced today by Attorney George Stanley Harvey, counsel for Murton and Irving Millen, makes a postponement imperative, according to the lawyer.

Harvey said he had received word by telephone from the clerk of the highest court that notice has been issued requiring Attorney-General Paul A. Dever to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not be issued.

Keeps Norma In

This is the first step toward gaining a new trial for the Millens through the Supreme Court, Harvey said.

Harvey predicted a delay of possibly five months in the execution, now scheduled for the week beginning April 28 in state prison.

Such a delay would automatically prevent Norma Brighton Millen, wife of Murton, from obtaining her

DOGS DOOMED By Woman's Will

The will of Mrs. Mabel A. Roman of Quincy, filed in Dedham probate court today, contained an unusual clause.

She request that her dogs be killed as soon as possible after her death. No reason is given.

Her divorced husband, Andrew Roman, is cut off with nothing "for reasons best known to himself" and her estate of about $10,000 is left to her brother, Frank H. Mason of Haiti.

COOLIDGE TO QUIT, CURLEY TO RUN

By FRANK K. REILLY

Senator Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg will retire to private life upon the completion of his present term in office.

He will not seek re-election, nor will he be a candidate for renomination at the Democratic state convention in June, 1936.

This announcement was made today by close friends of the junior senator who have known for the past four months that Governor Curley was scheduled to make unofficial announcement this month of his candidacy for the seat now held by Coolidge.

Formal announcement of the Curley candidacy will probably be made soon, spokesmen for the Coolidge group said.

Talk at Banquet

The Coolidge decision to retire from the political arena will not be officially announced for some time, it was said.

The Curley senatorial campaign came into the limelight at a banquet in Fall River when he announced he had accepted nomination by the toastmaster there as the Democratic candidate for Senator.

To persons inclined to believe that the Governor may have been joking, his friends pointed out that it was in that manner and under almost similar circumstances that he announced his gubernatorial candidacy 14 months ago.

As long ago as his birthday last November 20, close friends of the governor were announcing that he would be a candidate to succeed Coolidge at Washington.

These burned hands of his are painful, but 12-year-old Hugh Wallace of Glenwood road, Somerville, prefers them to the broken neck he might well have received if it hadn't been for live electric wires he was able to clutch as he fell from a tree-top in front of his home. The diagram shows how Hugh took his tumble, swung from the searing wires, then dropped with diminished force, escaping broken bones.

Death Stalks At Night Club

Girl Held—"You Pay" Says Dying Man

By International News Service

New Orleans, La., March 22—As dancers watched John Pierce, 23, free lance writer, was stabbed to death in a night club here today.

His girl companion, Marian King, 23, also a writer, was charged with his death.

Miss King admitted, police said, she had wielded the knife. She said the stabbing climaxed a quarrel.

Witnesses said the couple had been drinking. Pierce laid his knife on their table.

Miss King grabbed it and stabbed pierce over the heart, then laid the knife back on the table, witnesses said.

Pierce rose put the knife in his pocket, took out his billfold and tossed it to Miss King.

"Pay the check," he said.

DUST MENACE None Here Today

There may be dust storms in the West but Boston today was enjoying one of the clearest days in the memory of Weatherman G. Harold Noyes.

Danger of dust getting into the eyes of Boston folk, Noyes said, is slim. The weather plane, he said, reported good visibility and absolutely no signs of the dust storm.

Freezing temperatures were predicted for tonight with showers tomorrow.

SUNDAY HOCKEY Passed by House

The Sunday hockey bill today passed the House, and was sent immediately to the Senate.

Under the terms of the bill, Sunday hockey would be allowed in this State between the hours of 1:30 and 11. Previously, after the House passed the bill, the Senate rejected it and returned it for reenactment.

Eastbourne, Eng., March 22—A hearty, bewhiskered seaside character is "Dusty" Mathews, who doesn't often meet up with the King of England.

He spotted His Majesty taking a morning stroll along the waterfront. The King and Queen are here on a holiday.

"I'm pleased to meet you, captain. I knew your mum and dad," said Dusty, pumping the monarch's arm in a lusty handshake.

Whereupon he started up a brisk conversation.

They chatted quite awhile "about the sea," said Dusty afterward, unaware there was anything odd about his salutation.

By Associated Press

Rome, March 22—Loopholes in the Italian conscription law have been tightened so effectively, Federico Baistrocchi, undersecretary of war said today, that 500,000 men hitherto able to evade service will now be placed under arms.

"In 10 years' time," Baistrocchi said, "we lost 500,000 men through one excuse or another under the old arrangement. The new system, therefore, will add one-half million trained men to the Italian forces."

The under secretary's announcement of the new draft regulations came soon after his declaration before the Chamber of Deputies that Italy's military machine is ready for war.

He referred specifically to the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, but informed quarters saw in the statement an answer to Germany's conscription decree.

It was learned the paragraph in Baistrocchi's address referring to Italy's military preparedness was inserted only after Germany's rearmament plans had become known.

FRANCE MANS FORTS

TENSION GROWS OVER HITLER

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(World Copyright, 1935, by International News service. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

London, March 22—Tension in Europe visibly increased today and meetings of Allied representatives tomorrow in Paris and of British and Germans in Berlin on Sunday will take place to the roll of drums, the marching tread of recruits and the roar of munitions factories running double shifts.

The armaments race has entered its first lap at breakneck speed.

All along the Franco-German frontier fresh reinforcements are moving into that mighty chain of fortifications from Switzerland to the North sea which is France's first line of defense.

French boys whose older brothers served but one year in the army are now kept two years under arms.

Italy announces she is keeping her army classes of 1913 and 1914 under colors to bring the total of the Italian regular forces up to 440,000. "The Italian war machine is ready," says Federico Baistrocchi, under secretary for war in Mussolini's cabinet.

The British are rushing their program to make their air force second to none.

Russia's Red army of a million men lies vast and mysterious in the background with its spokesmen at the Kremlin demanding no compromise with Germany.

Germany is hurrying to complete equipment of its admitted 36 divisions. Evidently confident of its strength it is giving not one inch in the diplomatic battle.

This battle for the moment is decisive. Every statesman in Europe is mobilized, and notes from government to government are flying as thick as machine-gun bullets.

But the strength of each note depends entirely upon the armed forces behind it. The Allies claim that Germany, who yesterday demanded equality, has today already achieved superiority.

French War Minister Maurin announces Germany's actual strength is 720,000 men. More impressive the words of British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon when amid the silence of a tensely listening House of Commons, he declared:

"The figure indicated by the German declaration of her effectives exceeds that which any power in Europe at the present time could match."

Thus the British foreign minister on the eve of his visit to Berlin admits Germany has the upper hand.

It is evident she does not intend to surrender it. To the French and Italian notes of protest Germany returned the curt answer:

"I didn't break the treaty; you broke it first."

The French now smarting under this fresh snub, are confirmed in their resolution not to parley with Germany and not to admit her to the league but to hail her before the Council for condemnation.

The French say:

Britain Balky

"Germany has broken her promise, and there is no use trusting her again. The only thing for the Allies to do now is to band together in a straight military alliance."

The British reply:

"Some promise is better than no promise. We must exhaust every means of persuasion on Germany before we go back to reliance on our armies alone."

Tomorrow Captain Anthony Eden in Paris will try to make the French see the sense of this argument. He will undoubtedly attempt to induce the French to withdraw their insistence to the League Council to adjudge Germany, for that summons presents an insurmountable barrier to Germany's return to the League.

There is not much chance he will succeed because France wants to keep Germany out of the League, precisely in order to obtain a Franco-British military alliance.

Simon thus has an almost impossible task at Berlin. He had at first to persuade Hitler to enter an agreement with France, but France now indicates she won't have any agreement with Germany at all so long as Germany retains its new and from the French standpoint "illegal" army.

Out of this morass of suspicion arises one certain factor. That is —Germany surely will not give up one inch of the ground already gained.

Berlin knows she has only to wait for time is on her side, since with regard to the French appeal to the League, Germany has only to say:

"You see, we were willing to make any agreement you like but France is interested only in accusing us."

So the cards are stacked against agreement and the words of George Lansbury, the Laborite opposition leader in the British House, still echo:

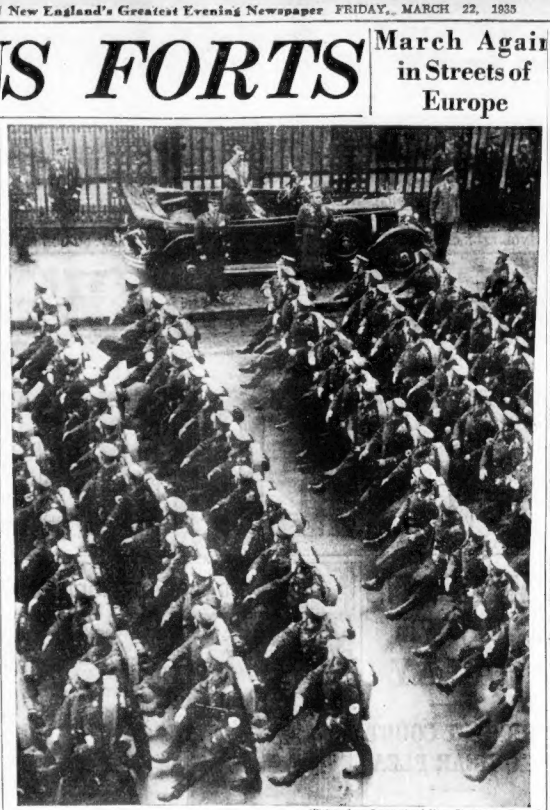
"Never since August, 1914, have we experienced such a feeling of strain and expectation that something dreadful is going to happen."

Simon's were even more significant, for he defined the position of Europe today precisely:

"By one means or another peace must be preserved. If not by the better means of agreement, then what is the alternative? Select special combinations against the dangers in our midst?"

This was his subtle threat to Germany, but it sounded like a prophecy, too.

SIR JOHN SIMON
"Open Diplomacy"



(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Once more Berlin echoes to the strains of "Deutschland Uber Alles" and to the tramp of hobnailed feet—marching this time to a destiny no man can yet foresee. It's 21 years now since a goose-stepping army marched before Kaiser Wilhelm Hohenzollern as these troops are parading before Adolf Hitler.

and summary rejection of French and Italian protests.

A new European arms race was on, and only a new military and security setup, now rendered doubtful by national jealousies and rivalries inflamed during the last few days, can halt it.

France's steely answer to Germany's act included the following steps:

Air Minister Victor Denain asked for 500,000,000 francs more for immediate modernization of the French air force. Aiming to make the force the strongest in the world, he urged the Karman factory to speed up production on new 200-M. P. H. bombers capable of flying non-stop to Berlin and back.

The Chamber of Deputies voted 19,000,000 francs for army reenlistment bonuses.

Another indication of the French state of mind was reflected in the overwhelming vote of 355 to 9, which an aroused Chamber of Deputies today gave to the Laval-Mussolini consultative pact. It was a smashing demonstration of Franco-Italian solidarity against German rearmament.

Cheers for Laval

Applause thundered through the packed chamber for several minutes after Foreign Minister Laval spoke on behalf of the Rome accord, which calls for immediate French and Italian consultation before either acts on any issue of moment in Europe.

Confident that the electric atmosphere prevailing in Europe would bring speedy approval by the chamber, Laval spoke in a mild and optimistic vein.

"France's sole desire is for peace," Laval said, "and the government's entire foreign policy is based on that desire.

"I foresee no war now. I believe the forthcoming meetings among French, Italian and British representatives will smooth over the German question."

The tremendous majority for the pact stirred a wave of excitement in Chamber corridors, where remarks were heard that the vote was reminiscent of the "solidarity of the war votes of 1914." The nine negative ballots were cast by Communists.

With nearly every deputy present at the critical meeting, opposition was reduced to a minimum, finding its voice only in the demand of one political leader for an outright Franco-Italian military alliance in the face of Germany's "declaration of war."

"War Declared"

Arguing against the ratification of the Laval-Mussolini accord reached at Rome in January unless a military clause is inserted, Deputy Henry Franklin-Bouillon, leader of the left radicals, warned the chamber:

"No more of these polices. By rearming, Germany has declared war.

"We must group in military union the nations of peace against the nations of prey.

"Germany and Hungary have a population of 80,000,000 men desiring the destruction of treaties and war.

"Not counting Poland, and with England supposedly neutral, the other nations have 320,000,000 desiring peace and respect for treaties.

"Second, admit no alteration of the German demilitarized zones.

"Third, sign no pact without a military clause."

Troops were ordered to fill out the garrisons in France's eastern border fortifications.

War Minister Albert Maurin, warning that the spring of next year will bring the crisis of the war menace, asked that Germany's man-power be out-paced in French ordnance and explosives supplies.

Germany, Maurin said, now has 600,000 men under arms and its army will soon total 720,000, with 2,000,000 mobilizable reserves.

He urged intensification of French armament and motorization of the army. He said he was working out a plan for further military credits to be asked this year.

By the spring of 1936, Maurin said, at the present rate on which German munitions factories are working, to Chancellor Hitler's superiority in militarized manpower will be added superiority in armaments, supplies, and other war materials.

Workers Trailed

The war minister stressed the difficulty of obtaining details of Germany's rearmament, stating that employes of German munition factories were constantly trailed.

Seventy per cent of the production of German metallurgical factories is war material, Maurin said. The factories work on four and six-hour shifts around the clock.

As an example of teh way Germany is allegedly building up war reserves, Maurin said that she had purchased all of Portugal's canned goods exports up to July 15, he said:

"Germany is piling up huge war stocks. The manufacture of machine guns is going on night and day. Synthetic fuel plants have been enlarged to a wartime basis. In three months, Germany may have 1500 new planes, since the present capacity of her factories is 15 planes daily."

Maurin told the commission that, in view of the recent international developments, troops have been shifted from garrisons in the French interior to strengthen frontier forces at strategic points.

In concluding he said he thought that France could count on the friendship of Britain. Italy and Russia. France, he said, had only one military treaty—with Belgium —and possesses only 210,000 soldiers in France proper, exclusive of the gardes mobile and gendarmes.

France had already approved two-year conscription to cover a four-year "class of 1935" in the army's ranks with boys born within sound of the World War's guns, and voted to build a 35,000-ton battleship.

Italy, France's strongest ally in the present crisis, announced that she was "ready for war." General Federico Baistrocchi, undersecretary for war, suspended plans for reducing the term of conscription, and extended the service of the present class under arms. A standing army of nearly 500,000 will result.

Britain has approved major increase in land, sea, and air forces, and Rumania, member of France's allied little entente, voted enlarged army appropriations.

At the same time, France and Italy aimed to support their combined armed strength with a web of security pacts around Germany.

France today put most of her diplomatic hope in the appeal she has lodged with the League of Nations against German rearmament, and in the two scheduled Franco-Italo-British meetings.

BRITAIN HINTS AT ANTI-GERMAN PACT

By International News Service

London, March 22—With Germany if possible, but without her if necessary, a new network of European security pacts was the goal towards which Britain strode resolutely today.

Sir John Simon prepared to go to Berlin Sunday to "promote adjustment by agreement," intimating Britain was determined to strive for general disarmament in the face of German rearmament.

His attitude, however, was not taken to mean Britain would drift away from co-operation with France and Italy and pursue a lone course. Britain's indorsement of the Italian and French protests against Germany's rearmament showed she had not altered her own stand about the illegality of German conscription.

Sir John made it clear that if Germany could not be brought back into the "comity of nations" as a disarmament and security basis, the alternative would be "a system of select, special combinations for assistance against the danger in our midst"—in other words, alliances against Germany.

A new international conference of sweeping scope appeared possible if Sir John achieves any success in his consultations at Berlin.

Germany, Britain, France, Italy and perhaps all powers interested in maintenance of general security may be invited. The hope for such amicable round-table discussion plays an important part in Britain's conciliatory stand in the arms crisis.

Government officials, asked about Sir John's phrase: "How glad we should be if Germany should take part in these discussions" during his resume of the situation before the House of Commons yesterday, explained it did not mean Germany would be invited to the forthcoming tri-partite conference in Northern Italy.

But it was considered likely that following this session, Germany might be asked to attend another conference of much wider scope.

Germany to Demand Navy Equal to That of Italy

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

London, March 22—Germany will demand from the European powers the right to a navy at least equal to the size of Italy's and possibly comparable with that of France, according to reports naval circles received today from Berlin.

The German navy now totals approximately 150,000 tons with 26,000 tons now building. Italy has approximately 370,000 and France 550,000 exclusive of vessels now being built.

The reports circulating in naval circles were that the Reich desires a fleet of at least 375,000 tons, possibly more.

Naval authorities recalled that Great Britain leads in naval tonnage with 1,160,000, with the United States in second place with 1,000,000 tons.

The information received here was that Reichsfuehrer Hitler will inform Sir John Simon, foreign secretary and Captain Anthony Eden, Lord Privy seal, when they confer with him in Berlin next week that Germany must again become a major sea power.

Great Britain is opposed to any discussion on the return of former German colonies to the Reich during the Berlin conversations, it was officially said today.

A government spokesman said the subject, not being covered in the Anglo-French proposals for security last month, should not be entered on the conversational program.

The German naval question, however, will not be barred, because the Anglo-French communique, which is the basis for the conversations at Berlin, provided for negotiations on all phases of armaments limitation.

An official emphasis, however, that Britain will be unable to make any decisions on naval matters, since the navy proposals would have to be discussed later by naval powers.

release from Dedham jail until the summer is over.

She is serving a year as an accessory after the fact, and is not eligible for parole until after the execution.

Harvey said he believed it would become necessary for him to ask for a respite to postpone the execution, either from the courts or from the Governor.

He said he had been informed from Washington that the attorney general will receive notice late today or tomorrow that he has 20 days to show cause why the writ of certiorari should not issue.

He said that should a write be issued, bringing a new trial motion up for hearing in Washington, it could not come before the Supreme Court until the week of May 5, because of the court's schedule.

He said he could not be ready by that time because he is preparing another appeal to the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Attorney Harvey paid a visit to the Millen brothers in Dedham jail late yesterday, accompanied by their sister, Frances.

The case was taken into the federal jurisdiction early in the state trial, when Harvey argued that a fair trial was impossible because of inflamed opinion in Norfolk County.

Hitler Reported Ready to Talk Air and Navy Limit

Berlin, March 22—Chancellor Hitler intends to seek a naval understanding and air pact with Great Britain during the vital conversations to be held with Foreign Minister Sir John Simon here beginning Monday.

While reviewing the entire European situation, including arms and security, on Sir John's own terms of "exploration" with "complete frankness," Hitler bases his main hopes for concrete results from the bi-lateral parley on the proposed naval and air agreements, according to authoritatively informed quarters.

Profiting by the Kaiser's pre-war mistake, say these sources, Hitler is eager to avoid an Anglo-German naval building race—and collaterally, an air race—by mutual agreement.

Hitler's sole naval interest, it was said, is to protect Germany's shores from a Russian attack.

The limit of his sea demand, therefore, is understood to be sufficient cruisers to keep the Soviet fleet at bay.

A condition to such an agreement would be a British pledge to bar any "back door" attack on Germany. Britain would be asked to guarantee that no Soviet fleet from the Black Sea intending to attack German shores, could pass through the Straits of Gibraltar.

Germany is also ready to negotiate for an air force of such strength to provide only for her own security requirements.

Berlin, March 22—A spokesman for the German government today declared that now the French and Italian protests have been rejected, there remain only two alternatives for the Paris and Rome governments.

"There are only two things they can do," he said, "Either start their armies on the march or decide to negotiate with us as equal powers."

France's protest brought from the official press a counter-charge that France had failed to take advantage of opportunities to improve her relations with the Reich.

The accusation was contained in comment by the government mouthpiece, Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, on refusal of Baron Konstantin von Neurath, foreign minister, to entertain French and Italian notes regarding Germany's violation of the Versailles treaty.

New Dust Storm

BLACK BLIZZARD TURNS DAY TO NIGHT

ONLY RAINFALL CAN SAVE FARMERS

By Universal Service

Washington, March 22—Fresh danger in a new dust storm rising in force in the drouth-scourged prairies and fertile wheat fields of Mid-Western States was reported here by the United States Weather Bureau.

The announcement, after the first dust cloud swirled over the capital, caused grave concern in agricultural and congressional circles.

Already 90 million acres of fertile lands have been laid waste by the storm in the last week, and the rising winds threaten similar destruction of another 100 million acres, the Agriculture Department was advised.

Heaviest damage thus far has been inflicted on the winter wheat crop in Kansas, government field agents reported. Unofficial estimates of the losses vary from 600 to 1000 million dollars.

Only a providential rainfall over a wide area, or a change in the direction of the wind can save Mid-Western farmers further appalling losses, officials said.

Desert Forecast

Meanwhile on Capitol Hill insisting demands were made for government action to counteract erosion.

Bleak forecasts of the fertile fields of the great plains scraped as bare as the Gobi Desert were spread before the House public lands sub-committee.

H. H. Bennett, in a plea for the Dempsey bill, quadrupling appropriations of the soil erosion service, which he heads, declared dust storms reaping the top soil from Western States will ultimately lay waste millions of additional acres unless prompt and vigorous methods are invoked.

He laid the devastation, unknown in North America until recent years, to the over-grazing and plowing under of the lush prairie grasses, whose roots once interlaced and bound the soil.

Rain Halts Dust-Storm in Parts of Southwest

By Associated Press

Kansas City, March 22 — Old Mother Nature came to the aid of many Southwestern housewives today in "mopping up" after the season's greatest dust storm.

While multi-colored particles of dust sifted down in the Panhandle section of Texas, showers cleared the Oklahoma atmosphere and blue skies were unveiled again for the first time in nearly a week.

Rain fell in virtually every section of the state, except the northwest wheat belt—the hardest hit. Rain also fell at Wichita Falls, Abilene and El Paso, Tex., banishing the last of the dust from the air.

Meanwhile the edges of the dust storm sifted down in eastern areas, including Delaware, New York, and Washington, D. C.

Panic Over Red Snow

Residents in Turkey Fear for Disaster

By Associated Press.

Istanbul, March 22—Red snow fell in northeastern Turkey today, blanketing an area of approximately 100 square miles one inch deep in ruddy flakes.

Superstitious residents of the area were thrown into a panic, saying it presaged disaster.

The whole countryside assumed a brick-red hue as a result of the phenomenon, the cause for which was not determined.

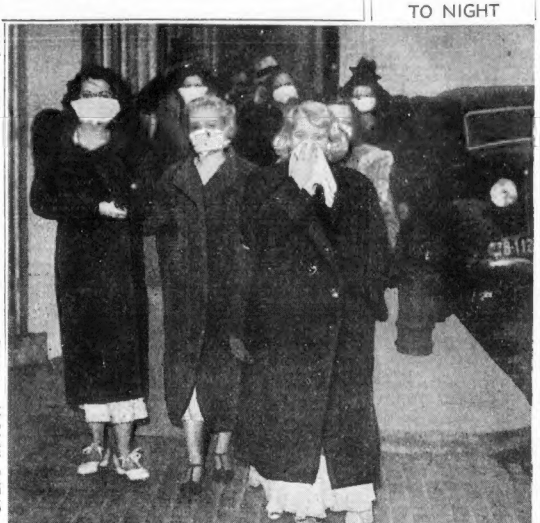
Red snow and red rain are well established phenomena. Their sources are usually dust storms, of red earth. More rarely the red coloring may be due to vegetation such as pollens or to swarms of insects bodies.

A peculiarity of red snow and red rain is that the dust storm which causes it does not necessarily have to be apparent.

MAINE INDIANS "Battle Whites"

Augusta, Me., March 22—Still the redskin fights against the white man's encroachments upon what he considers his traditional rights.

Members of the Penobscot tribe appeared before a legislative committee here seeking passage of a bill which would prohibit all except Indians from selling handmade baskets on their reservation at Old Town.



Even with water-soaked handkerchiefs covering their mouths and noses, these girls, trudging to work through a busy downtown street, find breathing difficult as a dust storm blackens Kansas City. Although the sun is high, the fine particles of windblown soil which saturate the atmosphere create an artificial twilight. Ever present is the threat of pneumonia, caused in many instances by the taking of impurities into the lungs. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

"Sequence" at Work In New Dust Storms

By Associated Press

New York, March 22—The "sequence" is at work in repeating again this year the dust storms of the midwest.

The sequence is explained in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Charles D. Reed, of the U. S. weather bureau, Des Moines.

It is a recurrence of similar temperatures every 11 months, which applies to the region between the Mississippi and the Rockies, and Canada and Oklahoma.

Its recognition is one of the beginnings of the new science of long distance forecasting.

Under the observations of this Midwest sequence, people who wish to know whether April will be warm can decide with fair certainty by looking at the temperature records of last May.

If May was warm, the coming April is likely to be warm. If May was cool, April should be cool.

Reed cited Minnesota records showing a temperature of one degree more than normal one year followed by a degree above normal 11 months later.

This, he said, proved true at 93 per cent of the Minnesota stations.

In North Dakota similar sequences happened at 92 per cent of the stations.

The records do not mean, Reed pointed out in his report, that last year's disasters are to be repeated.

As an example, he said a moderately warm, dry May in Iowa this year is likely to benefit crops.

Gold Worn Off

The gold leaf on the dome of the First Parish Unitarian Church, Monument square, Concord, was not stolen, church officials announced.

Heavy Dust!

Phillipsburg, Kan., March 22—The janitor of the Agra high school decided to weigh the "sweepings" after a recent dust storm.

Shoots Self

Chicopee, March 22—Samuel H. Finn, 43, proprietor of a clothing store at 103 Main street, is dead today, a suicide according to Dr. Charles J. Downey.

BOY'S Strange IDEA

FLUNKS CLASS; STARTS HIKE

A "premonition" that he had flunked his mid-year examinations at Phillips Andover Academy started Robert Owen Potter, 16, on a long trek West.

But a policeman in Wilmington stopped the trek today.

An older sister, Sue Katherine, an instructor at Wellesley, went to Wilmington for a reunion and a round-table discussion as to Robert's future.

Robert had "checked out" yesterday when his sister came to call on him. While she was waiting, he left via a rear door, leaving a note he was "going home."

But, according to He M. Peuss, the boy cou known he had been dr school. Fuess said:

"I didn't know it myself until a faculty meeting last night. All the boys were leaving for their Easter vacations, and I didn't know Robert was missing until I read it in the papers.

"On account of his scholastic standing, it will be impossible for him to come back here after vacation."

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Potter of Chicago.

At the Wilmington police station, Robert said:

"When I left Andover, I started to walk to Reading. I had enough money to take a bus from Boston to Chicago.

"But when I got to Wilmington, two men stopped in an automobile, and I asked them where I was.

"Too late I found out the men were Police Chief Ainsworth and Patrolman Burton Froton.

"They gave me a place to sleep and then called my sister. I don't know what I'm going to do but there'll be no more hiking west for me."

ROBOT PLANE On Test Flight

Oakland Airport, Cal., March 22 (NEA)—The government's robot radio-controlled airplane soared away from Oakland airport at 7:06 a. m. today on another test flight which is expected to take the big twin-motored plane 800 miles out over the Pacific.

The plane was expected back "before dark," according to officials at the airport.

PATROLMAN FROTON ROBERT OWEN POTTER CHIEF AINSWORTH

It's a cold world, in more ways than one, 16-year-old Robert Owen Potter, Phillips-Andover Academy student, is aware today. He's shown in the Wilmington police station, telling Chief Barry Ainsworth and Patrolman Burton Froton all about his misadventures as he attempted to hitch-hike his way from Andover to his home in a Chicago suburb. Chilled and weary, back in his studies, he gave up the trip after reaching Wilmington. Authorities were asked to hold him, pending arrival of his sister, a Wellesley instructor. Zuckerman Case Verdict Today

Unless some unforeseen circumstances arise, the case against Miller Frank Clark, who is charged with the slaying of 18-year-old Edith Zuckerman, will go to the jury today.

As both government and defense attorneys prepared their final arguments, the prisoner, officials said, was apparently unconcerned that his life was hanging in the balance.

Clark had surprised spectators in the Suffolk County courthouse where he is being tried by smiling frequently as witnesses recounted evidence against him.

But he astounded everybody as he took the stand himself and proceeded to relate in detail how he stabbed the South End bakery girl to death when she spurned his attentions.

The climax came, when in the next breath, he indignantly denied ever having slain the girl with the words:

"What, me kill that little girl? Of course not!"

The defense argument, it is believed will center around the testimony of Dr. Isadore Green, defense alienist, who testified that in his opinion Clark was a "low grade moron."

Dr. Green then proceeded to tell the jury that the prosiner had been playing the harmonica and singing in the detention pen while his counsel battled in court to save his life.

The alienist said that while he considered Clark medically insane, legally he was sane to a limited degree.

WALES Super-Salesman

London, March 22 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, Great Britain's super-salesman, helped land a £3,000,000 (about $15,000,000) contract for England with Rio De Janeiro.

Lord Dudley told the Iron and Steel Federation last night that the heir to the throne talked with Brazilian authorities when they were considering award of a contract for the electrification of part of the Central Brazil Railway. The contract was obtained by Metropolitan-Vickers.

Suffers 21st Fracture

Mattapan Boy Has Rare Disease

Doctors at City Hospital agreed today that Henry S. Edelstone, 10, of Mattapan, who has broken bones in his body 21 times, is suffering from osteogenesis imperfecta.

Little is known of the disease, which makes bones so brittle that a sudden twist is all that is required to snap them.

Doctors can spot the rare malady at a glance, but are very much in doubt as to what causes it. They will use the opportunity of the boy's confinement to the hospital with a broken femur, a hip bone, to study his case, hoping to find some solution.

WARRANTS OUT FOR DILL, SALESMEN

State detectives, armed with warrants, today sought Harold L. McCormack of Waltham and two of his salesmen in connection with the probe of Dill & Company, Inc.

At the same time the federal officials started a hunt for two men and a woman on whom they want to serve subpoenas in connection with two Federal Securities & Exchange Commission investigations.

McCormack, president of the Dill company, was last reported en route to Chicago. His wife last heard from him from New York.

Assistant Attorney-General Henry P. Fielding stated that more than 30 complaints had been received against McCormack and his firm. They charge sale of worthless stock and securities.

Attorney-General Paul A. Dever got the warrants for McCormack and the two salesmen after waiting for them to respond to an invitation to "appear for questioning."

The federal SEC investigators stated that they wanted to talk to Joseph Bardger of Brockton, who, they alleged, was general manager of the Winchester Institute of Finance. They reported him "missing."

"Missing," also, according to the federal officials, were Arthur E. Gibbs of Springfield, whose company is said to have distributed stock of the Polymet Manufacturing Company. This company is reputed to make an "electric eye" device. The stock was banned here.

Miss Beatrice Best, a secretary of the A. E. Gibbs company is also sought for service with a subpoena.

Saved by Her Unborn Child

Accidental Shot Lodges in Infant's Head

By Associated Press

Cleveland, March 22—Mrs. Marie Pular, 23, whose unborn baby was shot to death here, was said by hospital attaches today to be "in satisfactory condition and definitely beyond the danger line."

Mrs. Pular was shot in the abdominal region when a gun in the hands of a visitor in her home discharged accidentally.

The bullet lodged in the infant's head. The young mother was rushed to a hospital.

Her husband, Matthew, 34, furnished a pint and a half of blood for a transfusion. The child's body was then removed.

Physicians expressed the belief that had the child's body not halted the bullet the wound would have been fatal to the mother.

240,000 Jobs Lost in NEW ENGLAND

By Associated Press

Providence, March 22.—The sales volume of 105 leading lines of New England's manufacturing industries shrunk $1,500,000,000 between 1919 and 1929 and created a loss of 240,000 jobs, according to a survey made public today at the New England Council meeting.

The report revealed that the 105 leading lines of industry in New England, which suffered sales losses, constituted 32 per cent of New England's total industrial production in 1919, but declined to only 24 per cent of the total in 1929.

This group of industries suffered a 41 per cent loss during 1929, while manufacturing industries in the rest of the United States recorded a gain of 13 per cent.

Necessity for immediate action to protect industries here was stressed. During the depression period of 1929 to 1931, however, the stability of New England industry was shown by a decline in sales volume of only 39 per cent, while the country as a whole lost about 41 per cent.

MRS. EMMONS On Way to Recovery

Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons, Boston and Hingham society woman, who has been ill for five months, was reported on the road to recovery today by her physician, Dr. C. Wentworth Hoyt of Hingham.

Five months ago the society woman was stricken with lobar pneumonia, and since then has been bed-ridden. Today she sat up for the first time at her home in Main street.

RICHBERG
Takes Over NRA COMMAND

By Associated Press

Washington, March 22—Donald R. Richberg took command of NRA today after rapid-fire developments which found President Roosevelt and the chiefs of the A. F. of L. presenting a united front against those who would junk the Blue Eagle.

The reorganization was followed by speculation as to whether there was a new rapprochement between the administration and the A. F. of L. in which the administration might throw its support to the Wagner labor disputes bill.

The appointment of Richberg as acting chairman was announced after President William Green of the A. F. of L. and other union leaders visited the White House. The appointment brought no criticism from the union chiefs, though Richberg had been a target of bitter criticism by some of them.

The reorganization increased the NRA board's membership from five to seven. Besides Richberg, the board now will include two labor men, two from industry and two college professors.

Though Federation officials have been critical of administrative acts under the Blue Eagle, they said they stood with President Roosevelt in insisting on extending NRA'S life.

MARINE
SOLONS BACK ROOSEVELT

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, March 22—President Roosevelt's broad plans for construction and maintenance of a great American merchant marine are certain to be ratified by Congress, its leaders said today.

The President's plans embrace these fundamentals:

1—Construction of a merchant marine that will be adequate to transport at least 50 per cent of America's foreign commerce. Less than 33 per cent of the cargoes is now carried in ships that fly the American flag.

3—Their crews would be almost wholly American.

4—They would be built with the help of a direct subsidy from the United States Treasury that would equal the difference between the cost of building American and foreign ships.

Wages Subsidy

5—They would be operated under a direct subsidy that would equal the difference between the the wages of American and alien mariners.

6—They would operate under charters which would enable the government to call them to military service in the event of war.

7—The government would create a marine naval reserve of at least 20,000 men to be trained in the efficient operation and management of American ships.

8—The mail subsidies to American ships would be altered or abandoned.

60 JOBS
Made as Curley SIGNS 'EL' BILL

Approximately 60 additional guards will be required at once on the cars of the Boston Elevated Railway under the terms of a bill signed by Governor Curley.

The bill calls for one guard for every two cars rather than one for every four as at present.

"Car riders are entitled to decent protection," commented the governor.

With a deficit of $24,000 more for the eight months ending February 1 of this year than a year ago, a greater loss to the company is anticipated. Deficits are borne by the cities in which the road operates.

Light Lures Cockatoo
White Bird Caught in Newton

A gleaming white cockatoo, capped with a bright green crest, was making itself at home in Ellsworth W. Poole's rabbit hutch, at 58 Oakcliffe road, Newton, today.

For several hours the bird, believed to be a pet, engaged the efforts of several boys to bring about its capture, but to no purpose. It flitted just out of reach each time.

Poole waited until dark, and then brought modern science to bear on the problem. He lighted a dazzling sun-lamp, and lured the bird near enough to effect an easy capture. The owner has not been located.

Lindy Baby Tip Scouted
Hint Child Is Alive Called "Absurd"

By Associated Press

Detroit, March 22—An anonymous letter in the hands of Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann suggesting that the kidnaped son of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh may be alive and living in Detroit, was characterized by the Children's Welfare Society today as "absurd."

Mrs. Hauptmann, here to make an appeal for funds for her husband, under a death sentence in New Jersey for the death of Baby Lindbergh, said she had been given the unsigned letter in New York.

The writer, she said, claimed that the child identified near Hopewell, N. J., as Baby Lindbergh was not the son of the famed aviator. The Lindberg child, said the anonymous informant, was taken here and deserted in a theater.

Mrs. Hauptmann said she proposed to search the records of the Children's Aid Society in an effort to determine the truth of the unsigned letter.

Society officers said a child between two and three years of age was placed in their care in July, 1933, but that the possibility of a connection with the Lindbergh case was "absurd."

FIND AUTO But Lose Driver

Stanley Chuzas, of North Quincy street, Brockton, was being sought today by Dorchester police who want to return his stolen car to him.

He saw two men and a girl drive off in it and chased it to Dorchester. Police joined pursuit and finally found the auto, but then lost the driver.

BABY BOARDED Then 'Abandoned'

Baby Loraine appeared today to be abandoned. The year-and-a-half old child was left with Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wright, of Longwood avenue, Roxbury, three weeks ago for boarding.

The woman who left her, and gave her name as "Mrs. Dorothy Thompson," has stopped paying board, and cannot be found.

NOAH BEERY'S LUCK SUDDENLY CHANGES

Gets Contract

FILM VILLAIN WAS NEARLY PENNILESS

By DOROTHY ROE
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

New York, March 22—"Sometimes you're up, sometimes you're down."

Noah Beery, famous "heavy" of the films, recently sued for a Los Angeles doctor's bill, pointed a six-shooter at his head here and grinned as he gave the subtitle:

"What my Los Angeles creditors expected me to do!"

Beery, who admits he has made—and lost—millions in Hollywood, was distinctly "up," despite the fact that a few weeks ago he declared himself penniless and typed his own plea in the Los Angeles suit because he was unable to afford a lawyer.

The man who has portrayed the black-hearted villain in a hundred Hollywood thrillers cocked a quizzical eye at the $2500-a-week contract he had just signed with Gaumont-British pictures, and remarked:

"Honestly, I haven't got a cent. Funny, isn't it, for a penniless man to be juggling all these big figures?"

He spent several hours arranging for a flying trip to Hollywood to play in a new film, and negotiating a "million-dollar deal" in Wall street.

Road Turns

He added:

"I guess maybe it shows that it's a long road that has no turning."

He had no other explanation for his sudden leap to fortune after five years of indebtedness and worry. He explained the picture business thus:

"For a while you're on top. Then the producers don't want you. As suddenly you're on top again. The British company has just postponed production for a week to allow me to finish the film in Hollywood."

Then he talked of the zigzagging fate that tossed him from riches to rags and back again in five years. Said he:

"I guess it was all in the cards.

"The first disaster came from the sky. A cloudburst ruined my trout hatchery and lost me a third of a million.

"Then there were domestic troubles. The Wall Street crash cost me three million.

Always Paid

"But I never refused payment of any debt. I had many thousands of old debts, but I never took advantage of the bankruptcy laws.

"It has been my pleasure to pay all my bills. This recent suit is something else. Reputable Los Angeles physicians have told me the fee asked by that doctor was highway robbery."

Beery explained that he had paid $1000 of the $2000 asked by the suing California physician. The bill, he said, was incurred by his wife after they had been separated.

But he greeted Lady Luck with a low bow, and he said:

"When I finish these pictures, I won't have a single dissatisfied creditor.

"My job is to work. I have never stopped working, and I hope I never will."

FATE Of Dog Tracks KNOWN TODAY

Holders of dog track licenses went before the state racing commission today, in private session, to fight to retain their permits.

Political opinion is that all five licenses will be suspended or revoked, in accordance with the expressed wish of Governor Curley and council.

First to go before the commission were representatives of the Bay State Greyhound Association which holds a Cambridge license.

Next to be heard, in order, were the Crescent Kennel Club, Inc., with a license for West Springfield; Bristol County Kennel Club, Inc., which plans a track in Dighton; Old Harbor Kennel Club, Inc., South Boston, and Essex County Greyhound Association, Inc., Methuen.

ERA CHARGES Sifted in Everett

Complaints by Everett ERA applicants will be aired tonight at a meeting of a special committee of the Everett Common Council.

Wholesale charges that single persons with dependents had been unable to obtain work have been made. Others voiced dissatisfaction with the ERA conditions under which they are working.

On the committee are Councilmen Francis P. Byrne, Frederick L. Galbraith, Herbert W. Card, Louis Enfanto and Joseph F. Mackey.

FR. SLATTERY Leaves $20,875 Estate

The estate of the late Rev. Lawrence W. Slattery of Newton, pastor of Our Lady Help of Christians Church when he died February 6, was valued at $20,875, according to the administration papers filed in Middlesex Probate Court by his brother, Charles H. Slattery. No will was left.

Daring New Swim Suits Scanty and Ultra Snug

By Associated Press.

New York, March 22—Swim suits for the summer ahead are bad news for women with poor figures. Some of them fit closely as a foundation garment and demand nothing short of anatomic perfection.

The gay new beach wear fabrics are trying for curves too ample and frames too spare. Printed crepe from the same bolt that makes frocks for the Easter parade appears now in bathing suits, and, although the suits are jersey-lined, they're revealing.

So are the polka dotted foulards and the new Tahiti printed silk suits, even more daring.

To the waistline these are completely backless. Little straps that tie at the top of the arm hold them up, and eight inches of bare skin may gleam below the brassiere top.

Knit bathing suits now are one-piece and skin tight. The "stretch" is woven into the suit, which gives with each motion, but keeps its shape.

Another 1935 model is a sea-going track suit of strawberry pink rubber. The slim top is tucked in like a sweater, and the pleated shorts have white cord lacings.

A new trick for beach wear is the use of real seashells for buttons.

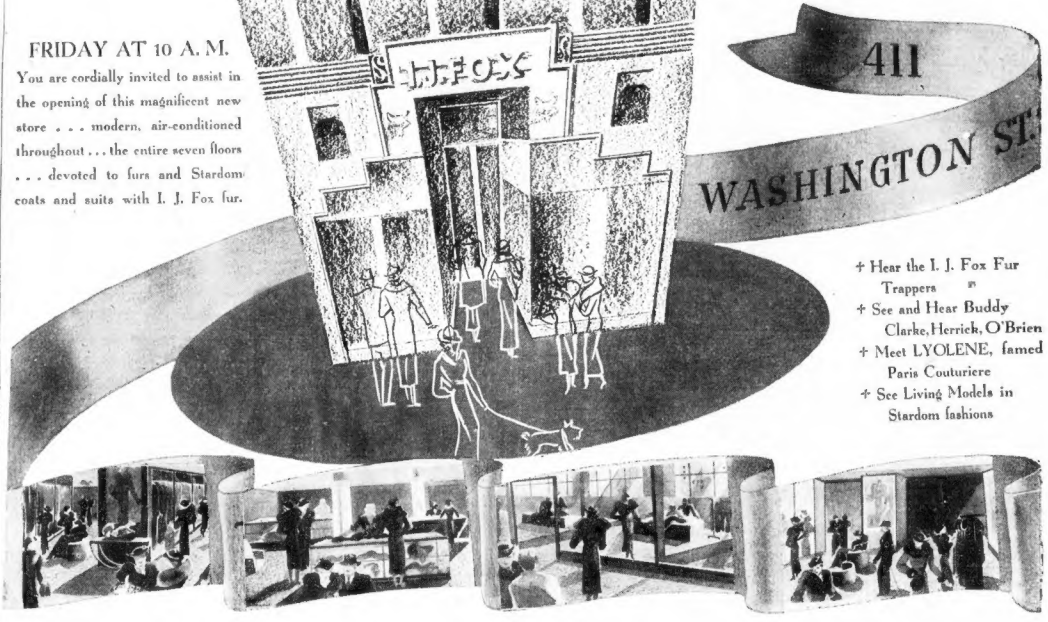
Seven-Story

BUILDING



FRIDAY AT 10 A. M.

You are cordially invited to assist in the opening of this magnificent new store . . . modern, air-conditioned throughout . . . the entire seven floors . . . devoted to furs and Stardom coats and suits with I. J. Fox fur.

+ Hear the I. J. Fox Fur Trappers
+ See and Hear Buddy Clarke, Herrick, O'Brien
+ Meet LYOLENE, famed Paris Couturiere
+ See Living Models in Stardom fashions

I cordially invite you to come and celebrate with me the opening of my new building, the most modern in the East, devoted exclusively to furs and Stardom cloth coats and Stardom suits, many trimmed with glorious I. J. Fox Furs. I am proud to open my doors to the women of New England who have made my dream a reality. My only desire is to make your dollars buy more beauty. I have filled my new store with the loveliest fashions in the world. Like Paris, London, Hollywood right here in Boston. But the famous I. J. Fox low prices still prevail, low prices on quality, through volume buying. That is the principle which brought more women to buy furs from me than from any other furrier in America.

CELEBRATE WITH US

The Opening of the New 7-story I. J. Fox Building

Spring adventure for Boston! Among the first to recognize the stimulating fashion background of Hollywood, I. J. Fox learned from the stars the art of charm through fashion. So he gave Stardom coats to Boston, adorned with the world-famous furs by I. J. Fox. He searched out the smartest ideas in Paris and London. He believed that nothing was too smart for Boston women. There is not a glamorous idea for spring which may not be yours now at the famous I. J. Fox low prices. And whether you spend much or little, we can save you money on every coat or suit you buy.

REALTOR Scores State TAX RATE

The Massachusetts real-estate tax is practically four times what it should be, according to Walter Schmidt, of Cincinnati, president of the National Association of Real Estate boards.

He told the Boston Real Estate Exchange, holding its annual dinner at the Chamber of Commerce, that nearly half of the states were considering a limit of 1½ to 1 per cent on real estate.

Schmidt confessed that he was astounded at the four per cent tax in Boston.

ENGLISH Newsprint GAINS

SURVEYED BY HEARST AID

By Universal Service

New York, March 22—Great strides made in the newsprint industry in England and Finland were described this week in an interview given to Editor & Publisher by J. D. Coffin, a member of the committee in charge of purchases of paper for Hearst newspapers and magazines.

Mr. Coffin recently returned from an extensive trip in Sweden, Finland, Germany and England where he studied conditions in the newsprint industry.

He stated that he was surprised to learn that newsprint productive capacity in England had more than doubled since 1926.

"It is interesting to note," Mr. Coffin said, "that during the years in which the Canadian Newsprint Company, its successor, the Newsprint Institute of Canada and in turn its successor the Newsprint Manufacturers' Association of Canada (NEMAC) have been functioning, and with the apparent objective of controlling the newsprint market in the United States by either increasing or maintaining prices, the newsprint industry in Great Britain has nevertheless been able to more than double its productive capacity.

Finland Expands

"Finland is expanding in productive capacity more than either Sweden or Norway.

"The Finnish market was practically confined to Russia until the revolution of 1918 after which time new markets had to be developed.

"The Finnish paper mills have run at full capacity since 1921. The productive capacity has increased steadily since that time as a result of low wood, labor, power and shipping costs as well as favorable exchange premiums."

MYSTERY DEATH Waits Inquest

Southern Pines, N. C., March 22 (US)—An inquest into the mysterious death of Mrs. Charlotte M. Quitter, 28, of Newburgh, N. Y., whose body was found near a roadhouse here awaits the arrival of her husband, William Quitter, superintendent of the Erie Railroad.

Michael McDonald, 28, a local tailor who roomed at Mrs. Quitter's winter home here, was being held. He told police Mrs. Quitter fell from the automobile he was driving after they left the inn, but that he did not discover her absence from the car until he had driven back to the house.

$27 CAMPAIGN Won Mayor's Job

Newspaper advertising which cost but $27 was the only expense incurred by Mayor Sidney E. Bell of Leominster in winning his campaign for office, he says.

Addressing a luncheon of the State Society of Colonial Wars at the Parker House, he added that the only contributions made by others to the success of his campaign was in the form of automobiles loaned to take infirm voters to the polls.

RIGHT TO CUT Phone Rates Upheld

Baton Rouge, La., March 22—Judge W. Carruth Jones in East Baton Rouge District court upheld the right of the Louisiana Public Service Commission to reduce the telephone rates in Louisiana under their recent order drastically revising the rates downward. Senator Huey P. Long was the commission counsel.

FRENCH PLANE Crash Kills 6

Paris, March 22 (US)—Six French naval men were killed when a seaplane in which they were making a test flight crashed at Naninop.

The ship was seen to burst into flames shortly before it fell.

1 Killed, 6 Hurt

Greenwich, Ct., March 22 (AP)—John J. Marenghi, 31, of North Bergen, N. J., was killed and six others were injured in a crash of two trucks on Toll Gate Hill, Boston Post road, here early today.

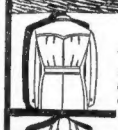
A sporting proposition

You probably know that sports suits are due for a big play, this Spring. We want to sell a lot of them right now—at the start of the season. To do it, we've lined up 625 brand new arrivals—and we've tagged them $7.50 less than they usually bring. Result: You get a dandy saving—we start off with a bang. Good business for both of us! ★★ Take advantage of this sporting proposition today or tomorrow—because there'll be no more of this quality at this price.

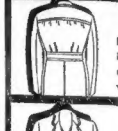


Center-Pleat Sports

"Head Man" in the sports line-up. A grand pair of shoulders—accented by a broad, pleated back. Looks best in this season's new saddle-check weaves.

Bellows-Pocket Sports

Pockets make this coat! Square, swashbuckling patch-pockets—with extra fullness outside the jacket. A jaunty touch borrowed from the military tunic—the most flattering of all coats.



Hollywood Sports

If you know your "movies", you'll need no introduction to this chap. He is the pal of most every studio hero. And the new, smooth worsted-cheviots add a lot to his good looks.

Pleat-Pocket Sports

This one takes work and play in one stride. Good taste in town—good company out in the country. Saxony Weaves and Scotch Tweeds fit both scenes perfectly.

Bi-Swing Sports

An old favorite in some mighty keen new woolens! You'll particularly like the solid tone Shetlands and roughish Homespuns—the club-checks and California plaids.

ALYCE
Must Learn to WALK AGAIN

By Associated Press

Fall River, March 22—It was a happy little Alyce Jane McHenry who awakened in the Truesdale Hospital today and saw the sun shining, for it meant she would be able to go out on the porch again for her sun bath.

Doctors were asked when the 10-year-old Omaha girl, who was operated on for diaphragmatic hernia, would be able to walk.

They said that teaching Alyce to walk again would be a "very gradual process." First her feet would be lowered from her hospital bed and rested on a chair so that she would know how it felt to have something solid to push against, they said.

Later her feet would be lowered to the floor and finally she would be allowed to put her weight on them.

"It will be a period of days until sl- is able to stand alone," hospital authorities declared.

The bright little girl's condition is very good, her physicians said. Steady improvement has been noted.

Stories of Grand Opera Told

That readers of the Boston Evening American may know the stories of the operas to be presented by the Metropolitan Opera Company at the Boston Opera House during the week of April 1, Ann Ames of this newspaper has prepared and will publish a brief outline of each of the eight operas in the order in which they will be presented.

"Die Walkure" (The Valkyrie)
By Richard Wagner

(To be presented in German Monday evening, April 1.)

George Bernard Shaw has called Wagner's "Ring of the Nibelungs" a great revolutionary allegory.

"The Valkyrie" is the first of the three operas from the "Ring," and is preceded by "The Rhinegold," called the prologue, and followed by "Siegried" and "The Twilight of the Gods."

Before the curtain rises on "The Valkyrie," two children, Siegmund and Sieglinde, brother and sister, have been born to Wotan, ruler of the gods and an earthly mother.

Separated during childhood, they are reunited at the beginning of the opera at the hut of Hunding, Sieglinde's tyrannical husband, to whom she has been married against her will.

Sieglinde, impelled by pity for the youth, whom her husband threatens to kill before dawn, drugs the sleeping Hunding, and flees with the young stranger. They fall deeply in love, and at last discover that they are long lost brother and sister.

The second act finds Wotan on a rocky mountain top, surrounded by his nine daughters, the Valkyries, born of the eternal mother. To one of them, Brunhild, he entrusts the protection of his earthly son, Siegmund.

But Fricka, goddess of marriage and Wotan's wife, countermands his decree.

Then to the mountain pass come Siegmund and Sieglinde, with Hunding in pursuit. Brunhild, enhaloed in shining light, appears, and warns them that they have enraged the gods, and that Siegmund must join the heroes of Valhalla.

She is nevertheless deeply moved by their great love, and incurs Wotan's wrath by trying to protect Siegmund in battle, and when that fails, she flees with the heart-broken Sieglinde.

BEAUTIFUL FINALE

The final act transpires on the rock of the Valkyries. Brunhild, fleeing from her father, brings Sieglinde there, and is met by her eight sister Valkyries. Unwilling to incur parental wrath, they at first refuse to aid the fugitive, but when Brunhild tells of the child Sieglinde will bear, they send her to the forests for safety.

Wotan's wrath is only appeased when he condemns his daughter to sleep on the rock of the Valkyries until the kiss of a hero awakens her.

She begs him to surround her with a wall of fire, so that only a man who knows no fear may reach her. Wotan consents, and after his farewell, one of the most beautiful passages of the opera, he places her on a rock, covers her with the long shield of the Valkyries, and summons Loki, god of fire, to encircle her with his magic flame, as the curtain falls.

COURT SEQUEL TO WILD NIGHT

Joseph Mikowlski had his night of it, brandishing a gun and terrifying two cab drivers, according to police.

Today in Somerville court, he was held in $10,000 bail on two counts of armed robbery totaling $3.30.

He was charged with robbery of $1.60 from cab driver Alfred DeToit of Medford street, Somerville, and of $1.70 from driver John Kilzy of Heath street, Somerville.

Lacking bail, he was remanded to East Cambridge jail.

Mikowlski gave his address as Eustis street, Somerville, and said he was married. Police said he was on parole from Concord Reformatory.

According to charges, Mikowlski called DeToil's cab, waved a gun, and drove the cab, with DeToit as a passenger, over the sidewalk at Summer and Lowell streets, Somerville.

The cab struck 12-year-old Sidney Hartinol of Oxford street, Somerville. The boy was treated for head and leg injuries.

Then, according to police, Mikowlski repeated the performance on Kiley and drove into Cambridge.

Kiley shouted to Patrolman Frank Andrews on Bristol street, Cambridge. The patrolman, with Kiley's aid, subdued Mikowlski.

SERIOUS CHARGE
Husband Accused

Victor Palson, 43, of Mack, Pa., was held in $5000 bail today by Judge Thomas J. Connolly in Brighton district court on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

His estranged wife, Madaline, of Lincoln street, Brighton, charged that Palson attacked her in her home February 17.

Hultman Took Liquor Home For Analysis, Says Barnes

The charges of "moral turpitude" expected to be made against former Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman were laughed off today by Attorney Clarence A. Barnes, Hultman's counsel.

The only specific charge that could be learned was that Hultman occasionally took home from headquarters bottles of liquor which police had confiscated in prohibition raids.

These he had packed in a little black bag, it is alleged, and took to his 90 The Fenway home.

Attorney Barnes grinned, and said:

"If that's what they're basing their moral turpitude charge on, Mr. Hultman's friends have nothing to worry about.

"We admit that he took liquor home. Why Mr. Hultman gave away $15,000 worth of alcohol to various hospitals. All it was good for was rubbing purposes, and some of it not even for that.

"I don't deny that he had liquor taken from the storeroom to his home, but it was not for beverage purposes. It was to have it analyzed.

"And now that it's been analyzed, anyone foolish enough to want to drink it is welcome to it. There's still some of it left if there at his home, I believe."

Curley Opens Fox Building
Pays Tribute to Faith, Courage of Founder

Before hundreds of spectators, the new seven-story I. J. Fox building was officially opened today by Governor Curley as he paid high tribute tot he faith and courage of the founder.

A silver replica, engraved, of the key to the store was presented the Governor by Mr. Fox after the Governor drew the string which revealed modernistic windows with a dazzling array of latest fashions.

After a tour of inspection, Governor Curley publicly lauded the economic faith of Mr. Fox for building during depression times. He said:

"The new establishment of I. J. Fox is something more than a mere assemblage of steel, cement and wood. It is a monument to the skill and artistic conception of the architects and interior decorator.

"The structure itself, started in the winter season in the sixth year of industrial depression in America, should remain as an inspiring and enduring memorial to the faith of one man in his God, in his country and in himself.

"It should serve as an inspiration to the development of a similar faith upon the part of the industrial leaders and if this faith would be acquired by other industrial leaders, the depression would be speedily done away with and there would be a return of recovery."

Huge floral tributes lined the wall on the first floor, the two most outstanding being a white fox made of white carnations, sent by Mrs. David Lilienthal, wife of the vice-president and treasurer of the company; and a 10-foot floral replica of the building itself.

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Edna Ferber is like the Ol' Man River of the piece inspired by her novel "Show Boat"—she just keeps on rollin' along.

Robert E. Rogers

While other American novelists try this and that in the season for variety and novelty, the prolific lady novelist, the Edna novel she produces every other season, the Edna novel, the American novel, the symbolic novel Miss Ferber plugs away steadily at her job of writing the American comedy humane.

William Allen White wrote of her that her novels are indispensable for a foreigner seeking to understand America today in the light of what it has been.

Since 1922 she has apparently been working at a specific task, the writing of stories which should culminate American social history in terms of time and place of each decade and section, so to speak, as well as of social history.

Without any particular fanfare of trumpets she has now completed six of them which give the reader a picture of the past 50 years of the Three States of Walt Whitman liked to call his country in sectional and regional patterns that exhibit beautifully our many varieties of ideals and practice.

The First

The first was The Girl from Chicago, the three generations of a kind of century of progress in fiction. "So Big," the Pulitzer prize novel, the development of market gardening and the hollowness of the second generation of city folks. "Show Boat," the American theater from the old days of the river troupers to Eva De Gallienne and Katharine Cornell. "Cimarron," the epic of the last frontier, the Oklahoma territory from the days when it was thrown open in 1889 to the days of the oil boom.

"American Beauty," the story of Connecticut from the 1870's down through the days of its decay and its rejuvenation by the Polish farmers and their children, the blend of the old Yankee stock with the later European, and finally, the latest of the series, "Come and Get It," the novel of the Wisconsin lumber empire that becomes another empire from the days of the land grants after the Civil War to the days of the great crash in 1929.

Strictly speaking the story runs from Roosevelt to Roosevelt, from 1897 to 1933, and tells tragedy and dramatically the saga of a lumber camp cookee who marries into the family of an older millionaire lumberman who had sold his timber from the U. S. government, and who hands his empire down to his son who becomes a power in industry and finance. It would, in order that his beautiful wife, a Saxon waitress, may enjoy the daughter of a prince, sell mines, run a swell yacht to Paris and London, entertain the Prince of Wales and raise her children to be good Europeans.

About Plain Folks

But at the end the children are back in America preparing to learn the wood pulp business and to understand modern industrial democracy, two cures, off the old block. The novel ends with the scene wherein the young star who has been brought up in the European aristocracy sends his grandfather, the oldest active lumberjack in the woods, to fell a great tree to mark the spot where an avenue of landing field is to connect the deep woods with the outside world.

Edna Ferber is no theoretical sociologist. There is no thesis in her books. She is enormously interested and this is her most frequent and successful theme in the stories of simple, direct folk who begin humbly and ambitious, back in the swaddling days of Civil War and finally wealth and power and culture are never getting very far away from the homeliness of American middle-class life.

And she likes to tell about the melting pot, an old phrase put to use which exactly describes her cast of characters.

Her stories of the last two or three generations of American life are not Marxian. They are better than Marxian. They are true. They preserve for posterity the America we have known and interpret in plain terms of plain people the complex processes of change. She has an enormous faith in folks.

RANSOM READY For U. S. Miners

Mexico City, March 22 (U.S.)—In the hope Mexican bandits who have carried out their threat to execute the two American mining men they captured last Saturday, George Shaw, American consular at San Luis Potosi, continued his efforts to get in touch with the bandit gangs and satisfy their ransom demands.

Shaw has 10,000 pesos for the ransom of Mark Bower, New York mining engineer, and will try to persuade the bandits also to release Louis F. Bremaek of Pasadena, Cal., for the same amount.

STRACHEY Intends to Sail THURSDAY

By International News Service

Chicago, March 22—Deportation proceedings against Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, British radical author and lecturer, went ahead today in the federal building here before Immigration Inspector William J. Zucker.

While Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorney, prepared to present Strachey's defense against deportation, the British author announced that he plans to sail for home next Thursday.

Zucker, who at the opening hearing questioned Strachey concerning his radical writings, hinted that permission might be granted for the author's departure, even though the deportation hearings may not yet be concluded.

Admits Aid to Russia

Hillman's Union Sent Relief

Washington, March 22—The Senate's NRA investigation became a theater of bitter conflict with disclosures of Russian activities by a labor union of which Stanley High, man, member of the National Industrial Recovery board, is president.

Hillman himself disclosed that his amalgamated clothing workers of America has sent considerable money to the Soviet for relief of Russian workers and for purchase of factory machinery.

The statement immediately elicited a barrage of critical questioning from Senators King (D) of Utah and Hastings (R) of Delaware, both foes of NRA. After Hillman testified he was born in Russian territory and has visited Russia three times since the World War Senator King attempted to go further into his background, [illegible] men shot back.

"I came here to talk in support of NRA. I find the question is whether I was born in Russia. What difference does it make? I am an American by choice."

Hillman took issue with Clarence Darrow's assertion that NRA is destroying the small business man. He declared that if the program is scrapped "the working man will be right back where he started on starvation wages."

REVIVAL Of Building SEEN HERE

A building revival this spring was almost a certainty for Massachusetts, according to John F. Malley, state director of Federal Housing Commission, who announced totals pledges of $9,822,495.

The amount promised last week alone for modernization and repair on private property was $1,-751,257, the biggest week since the house to house canvass was started.

Boston leads the amounts pledged so far with two and a half million dollars. Lawrence has pledged three-quarters of a million, and Worcester, half a million.

B. U. 'Stunt Nite'

Professors and students at Boston University will present their annual "Stunt Nite," at Jacob Sleeper Hall tonight.

Sassafras Tea

YEARS AGO mothers used to give sassafras tea, sulphur and molasses, or some other "spring tonic" for "spring fever."

"Spring fever," with its days of listlessness, is many times nothing more or less than plain, ordinary constipation—due to insufficient "bulk" in the meals you eat.

Your grocer supplies the modern way to correct this condition . . . in a delicious cereal called Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily of this pleasant, natural food furnish the "bulk" required to maintain regular habits. How much better than taking old-fashioned "spring tonics." ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B, and food-iron, an important element of the blood.

Of course, if you feel actually ill, after being cooped up indoors all winter, you should consult your doctor. ALL-BRAN corrects only common constipation, makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into delicious muffins, breads, waffles, etc. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"AL" MARSTERS NUPTIALS SET

It was a bit of a surprise for the Arlington folks today to know that the Marsters-Dewing nuptials were to be at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

But the news came out with the filing of marriage intentions in New York by Alton K. "Special Delivery" Marsters and his bride-to-be, Miss Esther Frances Dewing.

The ceremony will be on April 24, and both Miss Dewing and her mother Mrs. Eben F Dewing of Woodland street, Arlington, were in New York today preparing details

The wedding marks the climax of an 11-year-old romance that began back in high school days when "Special Delivery Al" was the star of Arlington high's athletic teams. He got his title at Dartmouth where he was a nationally-famed gridiron star

Marsters is now an attorney for the Federal Trade Commission

STUDENTS Warned of YELLOW PERIL

The Yellow races, augmented by the Malays and the Indians, will rise and sweep the world, unless the United States and other powers step in and check Japan's dreams of empire

Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, director of the Chinese Service and Trade Bureau, issued this warning to students of the Boston University school of administration as the last talk in the International week series

He warned of a swiftly growing 'Yellow peril' which will end by Japan's conquest of the world unless prevented by the fact that the white races were at odds

CARNATION Wins Flower Test

New York, March 22 (US) A world-beating carnation undefeated in competition, was the predominant attraction at the International Flower Show here.

Body Found in Chains

Medal Pinned to Victim's Nose

By Universal Service

San Diego Ca. March 22—Police here were confronted with a fantastic death mystery recalling the grim series of unsolved murders which has horrified the city recurrently in recent years.

Trussed in chains and ropes the body of Carl George Frey, 31, a chauffeur and former movie stunt man, was found hanging to a pepper tree on the estate of his employer, Fly Paider, in an exclusive residential section.

An autopsy disclosed Frey died of suffocation. Pinned to his nose was a gold medal he won in a German-American circus sports carnival at Detroit six years ago.

Because it required eight men to remove the automobile chains in which the body was entwined, police were reluctant to believe the broad-shouldered athlete committed suicide

There were no signs of struggle at the spot where the body was found, a lonely part of the estate screened by heavy shrubbery and dense undergrowth

Police learned that the athlete had numerous female acquaintances. They began a systematic check of his friends in an attempt to determine whether there was a motive for either murder or suicide

Benefit Concert Held at Home of F. Douglas Cochranes

By BETTY ALDEN

IT IS ALMOST INCREDIBLE that a little fish swimming complacently in the placid waters of his artificial pool in faraway Greece could have anything to do with social activities in Boston . . . but he did, and this is how it happened . . .

His name is Gambusi . . . we don't know his nickname but he should have one . . . and he has proven very valuable in the extermination of malaria germs so much so that the American Farm school in Salonika, Greece, has been busily engaged in developing our little friend "Gambi" under the guidance of the Rockefeller Institute . . .

The American Farm school, and consequently "Gambi," has many friends in Boston. Miss Harriet Curtis of Mt. Vernon street is one of the trustees, and she, with a group of these Boston friends of the school, conceived the idea of a benefit concert to raise a few extra funds for "Gamby's" three square meals a day . . .

RAMELLE COCHRANE

Many Costumes

QUITE APPROPRIATELY they chose Ellenor Cook to present her songs from many lands as the piece de resistance of the benefit . . . Ellenor Cook, who in private life is Mrs. J. Philip Lane of Weston, has been generously endowed by nature with the requirements for her role as interpreter of the life and songs of the peasants of the Balkans . . . She has dark flashing eyes, high color, very even features and dark shiny hair . . .

With a quick change of costume between each group of songs she was able to treat her audience to a fashion parade of the dressy costumes of our southern European countries . . . One of her uncles taught in the university in Athens, Greece, until his death, and it was through the tales of these countries related to her by his family that she became interested in developing this style of entertaining . . .

The committee, which was composed of such prominent social leaders as Mrs. W. Rodman Peabody, Mrs. Edward Cabot, Mrs. James A. Halsted, Mrs. Charles Hopkinson, Miss Nanna Sweet, Mrs. John H. Finley, Jr., and Miss Ethel Foltes, decided upon yesterday afternoon as the time for their benefit . . . the F. Douglas Cochranes very generously offered the use of their ballroom and adjoining drawing rooms so once again the public had an opportunity of entering one of Boston's old patrician mansions . . .

One look at the audience revealed the fate that few, if any, of those outside the social pale ventured to attend the concert . . . The rooms were filled with women who enjoy positions of dignity and power inside the social circle . . .

Debutantes Act as Ushers

MISS GERTRUDE PEABODY, Mrs. Maynard Ladd, Miss Katherine Robinson, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Cabot Mrs. Finley, Jr., whose hunters green dress was worn with a mole skin jacket . . . were among the select group . . .

Ramelle Cochrane was a subject of the hour. She did not appear, but one of her sisters-in-law Marie Stevenson, assisted with the ushering . . . looking far different than she did when she made her last appearance on the Cochrane ballroom as Ramelle's debut. Marie was all in white and flashy Polish dress . . .

Sally and Betsy Byron, daughters of Arch Byron, about whom the social scribes will be writing again next season, were the other ushers . . . Czechoslovakian and Polish dresses, brought from the big wigs and layouts of Europe by Mrs. Lane, graced these attractive sisters who are Weston neighbors of the guest artist . . .

Peggy Barney, another of society's debutantes, always follows the drawing room concerts of Ramelle Hall where her rivals appeal to their admirers. Yesterday she wore a huge bunch of violets with her green tweed suit . . .

Merry Week-End at West Point

CELEBRATING THEIR TRADITIONAL Ball Night festivities, marking the end of mid-year examination and start of the spring term, West Point are making merry this week-end.

The imposing gray stone buildings on Hudson River will resound for the next three days with the merry laughter of the feminine guests of the hops. Virginia Weeks is one of the Boston post debs who is some way from home . . . She left yesterday morning . . .

Other post debutantes who are facing an immediate future of variety and fun are Mabel Peters, Dorothy Mayo and Ruth Fessenden, who are on the big boat on its way to Bermuda for several weeks . . . Mabel will visit friends in Forest Hills, L. I. before she eventually returns to her home in West Newton . . .

Novelties at Hasty Pudding Show

NEWS THAT IS GRADUALLY drifting out of the Hasty Pudding clubhouse, where all day long the various men are training and groups of songsters are toiling their tunes, reveal the interesting news that one of the time numbers of 'Foemen of the Yard," is to be most unique . . . "Phantom Feet" for which the entire stage is darkened and the dancers appear clothed completely in black except for their hands and feet, which are coated with glowing brilliant radium . . . the entire chorus takes part in this number . . .

Of a different nature is a scene which satirizes at once both the meetings of the college faculty and social activities of their wives . . . In this scene which is done entirely in music the faculty Women's Club is pictured as meeting under the presidency of Mrs. Elwell (Myron A. Wick, '37) . . . but soon degenerates into a free-swinging fight between the contingent of the Old Faculty Wives and the Young Faculty Wives . . .

Robert H. Gardiner, Jr., '37, leads the Old group as "Mrs. Musty" . . . while Robinson F. Barker, '36 is the radical chief of the advanced thinking young group . . . The high point of the scene comes with the singing by Wick of one of Francis D. Moore's best tunes . . . "The Life of a Faculty Wife" . . . Moore, the former president of the Lampoon and treasurer of the student council, has been the star composer of the show's music . . .

WIFE THRILLED, MULLIN TOO BUSY

By PEGGY DOYLE

Passing rivets in the Fore River Shipyards at the age of 13 . . . driving an ambulance overseas for 19 months . . . fighting oil companies which wanted to build on the Quincy Point shoreline.

These jobs, Leo E. Mullin believes, were excellent preparation for his present one — acting mayor of Quincy, probably Massachusetts most turbulent political front right now.

Surprised at noon in his blue shirt-sleeves at his Quincy Point home, 33 Avalon avenue, Acting Mayor Mullin instantly explained that he was "just home for lunch." He said:

"These are busy days what with unemployment relief and other outgrowths of the depression crowding the calendar.

"And this job of being Quincy's acting mayor is a full-time one—and one certain to keep me working overtime."

Mrs. Mullen, a plump and pretty brunette, her blue eyes shining with pride, put in:

"He'll be equal to it.

"Since our schooldays at Quincy High school, Leo has always been my ideal of a man. He is fair, loyal, kindly and he has more than his share of brains and good judgment. I'm betting on him."

Their three sons, she confided, are "terribly thrilled over their father's new honors."

Leo, Jr., who is 14, was away at Boston College high school, but the 12-year-old twins, Gerald and Gerard who had been deluged with congratulations by admiring classmates, were too excited to eat luncheon, their mother said.

"Of course," she said, "this may just be temporary. It is unprecedented and there is no procedure to follow until the lawyers and City Solicitor Young study the judges' decision and decide what's to be done.

"But it is rather nice to see Leo given the opportunity to show his mettle.

"I'm just recovering from a major operation and I usually don't arise until noon, but today I was up bright and early to answer the many, many calls from our friends."

Mrs. Mullin was Margaret Bennett of Quincy before her marriage three months after Mullin returned from overseas. He had served with the 103rd Ambulance Company of the 101st Sanitary Train, had been gassed and wounded in action and had been awarded an accolade for courage under fire.

MULLIN Asks 'Am I MAYOR?'

ROSS' ACTS MAY BE ILLEGAL

Acting Mayor Leo E. Mullin of Quincy was endeavoring today to learn if he is acting mayor (without the mayor's salary) or really the mayor (with the salary).

Mullin took over the reins of the city following the court ouster of Charles A. Ross on the charge that the Ross' re-election was obtained illegally because of too heavy expenditures.

Mullin has been a working man all his life and the matter of salary is one of importance, he said.

If he is to be acting mayor he must remain on his job at Fore River.

If he is to be mayor until the special election in May, he will take a leave of absence from his job.

City Solicitor Charles E. Young has been asked for an opinion on Mullin's status, but today Mullin went to Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook seeking an opinion.

Cook declined to rule on his status and advised Mullin to be guided by the city solicitor's opinion.

Acts Illegal?

At the same time, Cook gave the acting mayor another headache by bringing up the question as to whether or not acts of former Mayor Ross, since re-election, would be valid without a special act of the Legislature.

In the court ruling, Cook pointed out, the re-election of Ross was voided, which might act to make illegal all of Ross' official acts.

Meanwhile, supporters of the ousted mayor planned today a council of war to decide who would carry the banner in the special election.

Attention was naturally centered on who would run on a Ross ticket. The former mayor, who left the city for two-weeks' rest, gave no hint.

Despite Ross' indication that neither his wife nor his son, Charles N. would be a candidate, there was still plenty of support for such a move.

Others of the Ross forces who were considered in the turmoil included City Councillors David F. McIntosh and Edward F. Carson.

Former Mayor Perley E. Barbour was listening to the popular pulse beat, and so was Thomas S. Burgin, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. Frank H. Fox, who ran for Congress, was believed to be considering a run.

The only woman in the picture was Mrs. Charles A. Jobert who definitely announced her candidacy. She has a large following and has made a place for herself in both municipal and state politics during the past several years.

James "Two-Gun" Baker, former traffic officer; Yrjo Matson, former park commissioner, and several others are ready to get nomination papers.

The political wiseacres, however, were inclined to await the decision of Acting Mayor Mullin, president of the city council, before staking their claims. So far the young acting mayor hasn't shown his hand.

The primary will be held on April 6, the election on May 7.

BAKED APPLES

IN GENERAL, PEOPLE associate one or two items in a restaurant's bill-of-fare with that restaurant's reputation. This is so the world over. Epicures enthuse about this or that item of food which can be found in different spots, . . . often in untraveled and out-of-the-way places, . . . something particularly delicious, cooked exactly as they prefer it.

● I suppose Waldorf's baked apples have become almost a tradition, in every one of the forty-four cities where we have restaurants. Since the turn of the century people have relished those delicious apples, baked just to a turn, never shrinking, never losing their tartness or a bit of their flavor, lucious to the eye and the taste.

● As you can imagine it is quite a trick to turn out baked apples by the thousands each day, which never vary in flavor or appearance. As the months go by, after the apple harvest, it becomes more and more of a problem to keep our standards and to have them so good that the ever increasing demand keeps up.

● Just now we are using Winesap apples, which are best at this time of the year. I suggest you order one today, and see how good they are . . . the apple, the syrup and the heavy cream which goes with each serving. Ten Cents!

HEAVEN HIGH—HELL DEEP

By Norman Archibald

Three months after the United States declared war, I was enlisted as private, first-class, in the aviation service of the Signal Corps. Three more months and I was one of the lucky ones ordered abroad. At Issoudun, the American aviation center, we helped build the camp and lay miniature railroads—in the mud. Without any previous training, we started to fly the Nieuports, fastest and most dangerous of war planes. We talked, dreamed flying night and day. A test pilot was killed, but his death didn't cool my love for flying. Then we went on leave. We were entertained by a charming lady who had a white villa above the Bay of Biscay.

We were all seated. Two maids struggle with a huge basket piled high with bottles of champagne and place it on the floor beside our hostess.

"You!" pointing to one of the guests, "vener ici pres de moi!"

He, lucky dog, [illegible] and open [illegible] him three long [illegible] a thing [illegible] entranced and [illegible] swaying.

LEGION Ladies Back "OATH"

'SHOW-DOWN' DEMANDED

In behalf of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Massachusetts State Department of the American Legion, Mrs. Stephen C. Garrity, of Lowell, president of that organization today supported the teachers' oath bill.

In endorsing the bill Mrs. Garrity said

"It is hardly believeable that public school teachers should oppose a pledge or oath of allegiance to uphold the state and federal constitutions.

"I don't think there are a great number of Communist teachers in Massachusetts, but there are several hundreds of children of Communist parents that attend public schools.

Mrs. S. C. Garrity

"By invoking the oath of allegiance and the pledge to the flag teachers will declare themselves as patriotic Americans.

"Now is the time to have a 'show-down' on the matter pending before the legislators. Certainly it is not too much to ask that these men and women who are being paid out of public funds support the bill."

BUS Control Urged BY RAILROADS

New York, March 22 (U.S. Government regulation of transportation by bus and truck routes of the country was urged before Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation coordinator.

Testifying with former Judge Robert V. Fletcher, general counsel for the American Association of Railroads, appointed before the committee on commerce of the American Bar Association.

Transportation problems Eastman declared were unfair at the present time to the railroad. Whereas the railroads are subject to strict regulations, he pointed out, competing motor vehicles are not transportation systems have no regulation at all.

Chelsea Man Wins Gibbons $10 Prize

Because Elmer P. Whittredge of 160 Shawmut street, Chelsea, was impatient 18 years ago he won $10 today.

Whittredge went to France in 1917 with the 26th Infantry, the 1st Division and in the Argonne on September 14, 1918, he and nine other men found themselves in possession of 18 German prisoners.

On the way back to the American lines nine of the 10 Americans went ahead to negotiate some firing letting Elmer alone with the 18 Germans.

Elmer became impatient after a while and started to march his 18 prisoners to the lines, single handed, only to run into the fire of the nine comrades who thought "Wow, here are some more Germans coming." A sergeant after Elmer had raised a flag of truce that the firing ceased.

Elmer told the story to Floyd Gibbons and won the $10 award for his thrill of 18 years ago.

HOLLAND HEADED For Films Via Broadway Route

By George Holland

George Holland

Claude Grenecker the scholastic press agent for the Messrs Shubert, came to town in person to acquaint Horton with his employers new star.

If there is a George Washington among the press agents it is Mr. Grenecker thinking back over a dozen years would seem to be the Boswell with the press reputation in the matter of fibbing.

He hardly fibs at all about his stars. And Mr. Grenecker rests the point that in addition to her other claims toward eventual greatness, one of which is her "glamor," the beautiful Viennese is in training for the talking pictures in the first gymnasium of the legitimate stage.

This is the first admission on these records of a theatrical Boswell admitting that the rewards of Hollywood are so alluring that a star frankly is putting toward the west via the famous theatres of the key cities and Broadway.

Miss Maren has no intention of deserting the stage in the near future. In "A Journey By Night" which will be shown at the Shubert Theatre on April 1, the beautiful importation will make her first major stage appearance in this country.

• • •

True, she was discovered by the trade in a small summer theater at an engagement which served as a shop window display of her talents and her remarkable beauty, and her grace in wearing gorgeous clothes.

As many movie scouts as Broadway managers viewed her performance in the little theater and although she had a liking for Hollywood she appeared very coy, if not cool to the offers of the cinema agents.

She had conquered audiences in Vienna, and now she wishes to do the same on Broadway. It was Lee Shubert who gave her her opportunity, a contract and a role.

• • •

But it seemed that Miss Maren was not acceptable to the Actors Equity Association. The actors union enforces a tenet which prohibits the appearance of a foreign star until eight months have passed after a first appearance here.

So Miss Maren resumed study of the English language. Her course in her study has caused her to exclude association with all foreigners, so that now her accent and inflections are pure American.

Mr. Grenecker assures us that the charm of a slight accent remains and it adds to her personality.

"Miss Maren is slight of build, almost petite, he adds. She has flaming hair and a perfect skin. Her part in 'A Journey By Night' gives her every opportunity for tragedy, or at least serious work, and sufficient comedy to prove that she was an American sense of humor.

• • •

But, although the glamorous Greta is visiting Hollywood in the future, she has no time to idle her time on the Coast. She prefers being bought in being sold. That is, she, and those who control her destiny in the theater, are unanimous that her forte is the stage and that once established there, Hollywood will flash with sizable offers.

It seems logical. It has happened certainly in the past.

• • •

The young dancers, Marshall and Inez, are splendid. They are at the Decoration Group this week. Turn the clock back 10 this were the season of 1928-29 these youngsters surely would be dancing in one of the dozen musical shows that found production that season. At present there are exactly two musicals shown on Broadway and one on tour.

Mr. Marshall is as slim as Fred Astaire and is his style handsome. His partner is expert in pantomime. The couple's arrangements of their music and routines show thought and real intelligence. They are, in this column's opinion, a safe hazard for those who like to predict success.

Los Angeles, March 22—The dear public—you and you and you—craves to laugh. "Traveling Saleslady" does the trick and when it was previewed in the Warner Brothers' New York office there were loud shouts of "encore." So Jack Warner and Hal Wallis scurried around to find a fitting sequel. They feel they have it in "Serve You Right," the story of two feminine process servers by George Bilson.

FILMS

Ranks With Best Films of Year

"Ruggles of Red Gap," one of the finest films of the season, is the attraction at the Paramount and Fenway, sharing honors with the Martin Johnson's African picture, "Baboona."

Harry Leon Wilson's story of a gentleman-gentleman won in a Paris poker game and transplanted to an American mining town where democracy and Ma Pettingill rule, has been admirably recreated for the films.

Charles Laughton, in his first comedy appearance, turns in a performance in the title role that is brilliance. Judgment and artistry never once falters. His transformation from a deferential man-servant to a 100 per cent American patriot, proud and humble in his new-found equity, is crowded not only with hilarious humor, but infinite pathos.

All the Red Gap folks acted surely be just as they were first imagined. The Floods, Effie the flowery, and Egbert, with his weakness for loud plaid suits and Del Kenner's beer busts, are Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles. Zasu Pitts as the Widder Judson, who was [illegible] far wrong when she mistook Ruggles for a gentleman. Roland Young turns from the crafty Uriah Heep of "Copperfield" to a beautifully played comedy role as the Earl of Burnstead, and Maude Eburne is Ma Pettingill down to the last straight was key which she tosses down in the back room with the boys.

Just to hear Laughton repeat the Gettysburg address is worth all the other Hollywood histrionics of the year.

The general excellence of the program is maintained in "Baboona," a fascinating record of the animal expedition of the intrepid Johnsons in the jungles of Africa.

A tiny chimpanzee named Joe is one of the baby animal heroes, and quite the most adorable simian imaginable. His gentleman manner and pet wants patiently for his supper while a group of less courtly cheetahs lap up his pan of milk, is a moment of high comedy.

There's a thrilling fight between a leopard and a warthog, and other wonders of the jungles. But Joe and a baby elephant stranded midstream by his elders, said at last trudgeoning nonchalantly to shore, take the honors.

"Baboona" is the best of the Johnson films, and one of the most entertaining, natural and jolly of all animal films.

"QUINS" PINNING-UP TIME---AND, AS USUAL, NO PRIVACY!

"HO-HUM, THAT CAMERAMAN AGAIN!"—"Quin" Annette Dionne is so accustomed now to the goings and comings of news photographers that she accepts them as a part of her daily routine. It seems a girl can't have a minute of privacy, even at pinning up time, but life is like that, evidently. In any event, Annette is all unperturbed. And her costume isn't very much more extreme than the bathing beaches see. (Picture copyright, 1935, by NEA Service, Inc., and Boston Evening American.)

HYSTERICAL WOMEN

ARE you nervous and unreasonable? Subject to sudden tears and violent outbreaks of temper? These are often symptoms of feminine upsets. Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They relieve periodic pain and discomfort ... make trying times easier. "I saw your Tablets on display at the drug store," says Mrs. Charles C. Dix of Dayton, Ohio. "They relieved the discomfort."

Your druggist sells them; too. Small size 25c. Try them next month.

NO VANITY YET—"Quin" Cecile Dionne is just plain bored with this business of being dressed up after her bath. There's no novelty to it, no special fun, and certainly nothing for the cameraman to be recording for posterity—or for the curiosity of an interested world. So Cecile just yawns and waits for Nurse Leroux to finish the job and have it over with. What kick there is in the proceedings seems to be enjoyed by the nurse herself. Smart Shoes Step Gaily Into a Colorful Town or Country Spring

By Annice Brink

"SLACKS" they're called because they are designed especially for moments of casual lounging; comfy as bed slippers, trig as a ghillie, which they resemble somewhat. Though the heel is low, it has a graceful, far from chunky line. Unlined soft elk leather, to be had in blue, red, black or brown combinations. And cost under two dollars!

PARTNERS for your frilled afternoon things—these doe-skin sandals with the T-straps that do so much for a girl's ankles. Diamond cut-outs and wide bands over the toes so that none of the five little marketgoers will get out of line. Since the shoes are to be had in black, brown, grey, beige or white doe-skin (and costing around three dollars) you will surely want several pairs.

PEASANT SHOES of decidedly Tyrolean inspiration are the newest and brightest entrants in the sports world since the ghillie made its bow. They have absolutely no inhibitions on colors—royal blue, pearl grey, red and green on white, shine where dun shades were wont to be. The cox comb decoration may be worn reared upward, or folded down as shown. Around three dollars.

PERHAPS the most important shoe of the season—the suit shoe for town. A rough tree-bark grain leather that jibes beautifully with the popular rougher textures in tweeds, wools and even silks. Excessively neat with its bow tie and contrasting patent leather touches at heel and toe. To be had in black or brown. Also around three dollars.

All the smart new budget shoes shown above are from a Boston shop. If you wish for information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American

HIGH SCHOOL TRAGEDY

By Maxine Canty

Julie on Watch for Clues

SYNOPSIS

Julie Martin, she's all of 17, is relating what happened after her French teacher, pretty Constance (Connie) Sinclair, was found shot dead at a desk in her (Miss Sinclair's) apartment.

Julie has startled her mother and interests her father, a lawyer, by telling that she and her boy friend, Dicky Ward, had waited the apartment the previous afternoon, a few hours before the murder.

She had returned a fountain pen which she had borrowed from Miss Sinclair. Newspaper reports make known that the teacher was slain about 10 o'clock that night.

The police went to the apartment upon receipt of a mysterious telephone call informing them that Miss Sinclair had been slain. Julie's young brother Allen, aroused by the commotion, leaves the breakfast table soon after the family starts discussing the tragic news.

At the school later, Police Inspector O'Brien questions Julie concerning the return of the pen, basing his inquiry on notes made during an earlier examination of Mrs. Sardon, who conducted the apartment house tenanted by the slain teacher.

Julie tells the inspector that she talked with Miss Sinclair about a book. Principal Perkins remarks that he found the book on the teacher's school desk that morning and got permission to return it to the rental store.

Melvin Wright, the school's problem boy and the latest ardent caller on Miss Sinclair, is cited in secret ... the evening's [illegible] feature the Y.W.C.A. ... addressed to a Dear Sir ... who evidently was married ... then coming across with the news that Hym, Filipino valet of the apartment house, had watched the night of the murder.

That development was checked temporarily by news that the police had found ... Mrs. Wright of the same caliber of that of the murder weapon. The woman's father arrived, ... for the late Bruce Lloyd, described as the late Connie's fiance.

Lloyd appeared for the examination, said the engagement in question had been broken ... refused to answer questions regarding the missing ... and declared he could not say where he was on October 29, the night of the murder. Jane continues her story.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Managing Mother, Plus Good Food Helps

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WE SENT the fifth Miss—a wedding present last week and thanked Heaven their mother had no other daughters to marry off," a correspondent wrote me a day or two ago. "Their wedding presents were making a dent in our wardrobes."

According to this lady's letter, the five Misses—were not pretty, amusing, well-dressed or clever, and certainly they had no money. Yet even in the sad days of the depression, their mother began marrying them off—and marrying them off well.

The youngest, who was married about a week ago, was the least good-looking of any of them. Yet she made the best match of all, and my correspondent was unkind enough to say this was because the mother had perfected her technique, and if there had been any more daughters to marry she would not have stopped at dukes or crowned heads.

Mrs. ——'s recipe for pickling the richest and juiciest matrimonial plums for her not very pretty daughters was to make her home so attractive that all the young men loved to go there.

The family lived in a fairly large town, and Mrs. —— was left a widow with five children, no money and a heavily mortgaged house. She turned the two upper floors into housekeeping apartments and rented them, and the main floor and basement she kept for herself and the girls.

The room that turned the trick and brought all the eligible young men in town flocking to her door was an old basement kitchen, which she converted into an attractive club or recreation room.

There was a scenic paper on the wall, and some attractive furniture that I strongly suspect had been life as packing boxes. This was upholstered in gay cretonne. The old range was pulled out and a large open fireplace installed. Highly polished copper pots and pans hung around, but I doubt if they were ever used for cooking—just props.

There were a ping-pong table and an electric grill, on which a good many after-theater suppers and midnights were cooked. The woodwork was painted grayish green and on the wall were some old prints, clipped from English magazines and framed. The place was so cozy and charming and homelike that it started all kinds of domestic dreams in the minds of the eligible young men.

After the oldest Miss —— had married a rich widower, in addition to the done-over kitchen clubroom, the four remaining sisters had her house for a becoming background. And there were all sorts of dinners, parties and entertainments there, for "sister" had taken up mama's work.

So the three intermediate misses —— walked to the altar in short order, leaving the bounty one the subject for much speculation among their friends. But by this time the system was so perfect that the youngest and homeliest sister made the best match of all.

The moral is that the popularity of every girl, and her ability to make a good match, depends to a large extent upon her mother's success as a gracious hostess.

EXPECTS HER TO TREAT ALWAYS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a boy friend who is two years older than I am and can never keep a job more than a few months at a time. When he was unemployed, I fell into the habit of taking him to the movies and buying the admission—just to keep up his spirits, I would treat to coffee and cakes on the way home. He got to expecting this, and I don't seem to break him of the habit, which seems so unmanly.

Sometimes he folks send him money, as much as twenty-five and fifty dollars at a time, but he never treats me to so much as a chocolate bar or an ice-cream soda. I am beginning to get tired of this friend, especially as he is very jealous and objects if I go out with anyone else.

Don't you think it would be well for me to cut loose from this entire acquaintance, especially as I do not love him?

LOU ANN.

From the contents of your letter, all of which I have not space to print, it seems to me that you spoil this young man pretty thoroughly, and what with your treating and coddling, your affection for him seems to have disappeared.

As you no longer care for him, there is no reason to make you keep on taking him out and paying for his entertainment, unless you do this in a spirit of pity.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows

By Nell Brinkley

THE world is in such a very chaotic condition that no one can tell from day to day just what is going to happen financially, politically or socially. But love goes on in spite of everything—why not get married? In Miss Brinkley's beautiful picture this is the question being asked by Cupid. BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Gives Lips Enameled Look

One Lipstick as Foundation

By JULIET SHELBY

FRANCES DRAKE, pretty star is very popular in Hollywood these days. It's no wonder; for this dainty bit of feminine charm is blessed with great talent.

Miss Drake has her own ideas about a lot of things—men, marriage, acting, clothes and beauty. It is no surprise to learn that her little private trick of applying lipstick is known to only a very few women.

In fact she uses only lipsticks—one as a foundation and the other for color. The foundation lipstick may be applied under or over a regular paint to give the lips additional soothing and protection, or to heighten sheen.

• • •

My suggestion is to use it under your regular lipstick during cold, hot or very cold weather. At other times, apply it after you have drawn your lips in color.

Very young girls and very old ladies may use this in place of a color lipstick—it keeps the lips moist and intensifies the natural coloring.

• • •

If you have a husband, brother or beau who goes about with cracked or parched lips, sneak up on him in an off moment and make him promise to try it. He can keep it in his pocket or in the bathroom chest, and he needn't fear looking like a sissy when he uses it.

Notice the rich smoothness that Frances Drake succeeds in getting on her lips—if an extra lipstick will add such beauty to a mouth, I'm all for it!

• • •

If you wish to know the name of this lipstick and where it is sold, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American. Or if you prefer phoning, call Miss Shelby, at Liberty 4000.

WASHINGTON PIE HAS CIVIL WAR ORIGIN

It's really a cake-pie. Two fluffy layers of butter cake with jam between and a thick coating of powdered sugar on top. Did you ever hear the real story of this delicious dessert?

Well, it dates back to the Civil War times—when fresh fruits for pies were not to be had in the city of Washington. Nothing daunted, some clever housewife raided her own hidden store of jam. To make it go further, she spread it between two layers of cake and humorously called it Washington pie. What started as a substitute has won a nation-wide place in [illegible]

Authentic Recipe

1-3 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
1¾ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Raspberry or apricot jam
Powdered sugar

First cream butter until light. Then beat in sugar gradually. Add eggs, well beaten. Combine sifted cake flour with baking powder and salt and sift again. Combine vanilla and milk to first mixture alternately. Turn into two 8-inch greased layer-cake tins and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. When cold put together with jam and dust with powdered sugar. And notice this smart trick: Lay your wire cake-cooling rack lightly on the top before giving the heavy sifting of powdered sugar. When you lift the rack off, the cake surface is marked into powdered sugar squares, with the golden crust of cake showing between.

Given in Marriage

CHAPTER 299

IF MY terror for the safety of Roderick and Junior had not so obsessed me as to blot out everything else, I should have been chagrined and humiliated beyond measure at the sound of Avis Arlen's voice asking if there were anything she could do.

She no doubt had witnessed that embracing gesture which Hugh had made after my father had hurried downstairs with the injunction to us to follow as soon as we had locked the door upon Lee Chow.

AN "AFFAIR" TO AVIS

It had been a necessary gesture to keep me from falling; one that any chivalrous man would have made to any panic-stricken woman of his acquaintance. But to the hectic imagination of Avis Arlen, I knew that the momentary embrace meant but one thing.

To her it was the symbol of a more or less serious "affair" between Hugh and me, and she was slyly jubilant that she had acquired what she considered was a potential weapon against me.

I wondered if Hugh would realize this, or if he would be blinded by his chivalrous reluctance to believe anything so evil could come from a girl so young and apparently so naive.

But I knew that I could not wait for Hugh's reaction. I must answer the girl's question, and in such a way that she would not guess I was at all disturbed by her unexpected appearance upon the scene.

HUGH SAVES THE DAY

I was curiously thankful, however, that Hugh seemingly was not at all embarrassed by her sudden advent. He did not take his arms from around me until, utterly ignoring Avis, he said solicitously, "Are you sure you are all right now? I was afraid you were going to fail."

"Perfectly all right," I told him, straightening myself and slipping out of the clasp of his arms. "Thank you so much. I certainly should have fallen if you had not caught me."

I gave him a swift, grateful smile and then turned to the girl in the doorway, who was regarding us with a faintly malicious quirking of her lips.

"Thank you, Avis," I said hastily, "but you know what my father told you. I am sure he would not withdraw his dictum even if I permitted you to come into the hall. The only way you can help me is to stay in your room until the breakfast gong sounds. So please go back now, before my father comes up to see what is causing my delay."

AVIS PLAYS AN ACE

"Oh! But Mrs. Graham, I don't think he ought to blame me for your delay," she retorted sweetly. "Hugh really is the one your father should censure. Isn't that right, Hugh?"

She smiled at him archly, then closed the door of her room rather precipitately. I knew that she would not risk appearing again, with the possibility of my father's coming back upstairs. And I turned away hastily, with a feeling of impotent fury toward the girl who had tried to make a chivalrous gesture appear cheap and common.

It was but the fraction of a second, however, that anger had any power over me. The next instant I was racing toward Marion's room, intent only upon getting someone to stay with Baby Faith while I joined in the search for Junior and Roderick.

CREAM For Acne SCARS

Question—How can I get rid of acne scars? My face was literally covered with pimples last fall, but after using your tar-soap-and-yeast treatment they healed up. They have now completely disappeared. However, I have a number of scars left which I naturally would like to erase. If it were not for these scars my complexion would be really lovely now. R. E. R., Stoneham.

Answer—I am glad my tar-soap-yeast treatment did your skin so much good. It is certainly one of the least expensive and healthful treatments I know of. The scars of which you speak will doubtless vanish in time, but if you are anxious to clear them up I know of a skin peeling cream which will accomplish this. Merely send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me again, requesting the name of this skin peeling preparation.

Question—What causes feet to smart and burn? I am a stenographer and am not on my feet for any great length of time during the day, but just the same they give me a great deal of trouble. Do you know of a soothing powder to take the sting and weariness out of them. I wear flat heeled, sensible shoes and cannot understand why my feet are not in perfect condition. Ruth L. A., Brookline.

Answer—First of all massage the soles of your feet every night with cocoanut oil. Try wearing lisle stockings. They are going to be very much in vogue again for spring, and they are much more comfortable than silk if your feet are troubled with smart and burn. Neither are they so apt to wrinkle and bag-ging very nicely to the foot and leg. Rinse stockings every night in a borax solution and sprinkle foot powder in your shoes. There is a special bismuth powder on the market which magically soothes tired feet. It is also unequalled in clearing up a light rash or curing skin blemishes.

Question: My hair is thick and coarse. Do you think it will take a good permanent? I have never had one and since I have very long hair, I don't want to take any chances on having it ruined. Mrs. D. E. D., Dedham

Answer: Thick coarse hair usually takes a wave-ideal permanent. This type of hair falls into a pattern, forming lines much like the natural undulation. Thin hair looks [illegible] and it is very difficult to [illegible] to look natural. In order to have fine hair look wavy at all, a winding [illegible] must be used, and [illegible] and the ends of [illegible] take on a fuzzy appearance if you go to a [illegible]. CHERRY BUDS Laid to New Deal

Washington, March 22 (U. P.)—The New Deal was given credit for a all-time bumper crop of Washington's famous Japanese cherry blossoms, now beginning to bud.

The blooms should burst in about two weeks, park officials predicted. The display, they said, will be the greatest in history.

Listen, World! By Elsie G. Robinson

STEP ON IT, SISTERS!

I bet I do it!
Some day, in spite of everything,
I bet I do it!
For years n' years
I've fought against it—
I've bitten my lips
And chewed my tongue
N' crossed my fingers
N' recited the multiplication tables
And Remembered What Mama Told Me—
And, so far, I've managed to hold out.
But some day,
As sure's God made lil' apples,
I'm gonna slip—
It'll be Goodbye, Elsie!
But maybe it'll be worth it
For I'll have at least
One Glorious Moment
Doing it!

Elsie Robinson

Doing what?
Why, I though you knew!
Murdering a female of course—
Murdering a nice, sweet,
Harmless little female—
Grabbing her
By her cute, soft lil' neck
And busting her
Into 9837 pieces
With my nekkid hands'

• • •

All for why?
You know as well as I!
For the same reason
You—and you—AND YOU have wanted to murder 'em.
How many times
When YOU were in a hurry
Have you tried to pass
A woman on a street
Or in an elevator
Or a crowded store aisle?
And what happened?
YOU know what happened—
Nothing!
Ab-solute-less nothing happened—
Except, of course,
You got apoplexy,
And dementia praecox,
And arterial sclerosis,
N' fallen arches,
N' seventeen-day hiccoughs,
N' equinoctial storm,
N' riot calls,
N a general Crime Wave
All over the place—
But outside that
Just nothing happened.
There was the lady
And there was you.
And did you get past her?
No, dearie.
You DIDN'T!

S'far as
That dear, sweet, lovely,
Gentle, kind and pure
Little Lady was concerned—
You n' your Big Hurry
Just didn't exist.
She should worry
Whether you EVER got anywhere—
For all she cared,
The city could a burned
And the U. S. Senate
Eaten Hunky Long raw.
She n' her Girl Friend
Went Ambling right along,
Taking their time,
And blocking traffic—
And to heck with you!

So THAT'S why some day
And kill me a female
With my nekkid hands—
After which
They'll gimme the works
But just the same
I bet I go down
In history
This poor old human race
Has ever known!
So now you know
The worst, girls—
And don't say
I didn't warn you!
N' while I'm at it
I might as well add this—
You often wonder
Why men still refuse
To accept you as equals
In spite of your having Votes n' everything—
You often complain
That men still treat you
As nit-wits
Or the double cross—
Well, THAT'S why!
Get behind yourself
Some time
When YOU'RE in a hurry—
Mentally or physically—
And count the mileage
Then maybe you'll understand
When you get
The Big Boys' Goats,
And you have Hearts of God,
But the trouble is
You will insist
On taking your time
And hooking the traf'
And t'heck

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

"Shot That Won a War"

It Landed in Middle of Rebel Ammunition Dump

By FLOYD GIBBONS

FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

And make way there, Mates, for new member Clifford Dexheimer of Diamond Spring road, Denville, N. J. Cliff eases up to our port bow with a swell navy yarn about how his grandfather, Captain Clifford Hawkins, broke up a South American revolution with one shot.

Captain Hawkins was plowing South American waters, back in 1893, on the El Cid of the Morgan Line. Cap Hawkins wasn't a captain then—he was third mate—until that revolution broke out in Brazil.

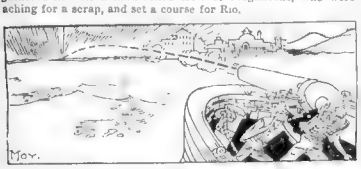
It all started when Admiral Mello—the Brazilian rebel—stole the navy and blockaded Rio de Janeiro (with the entire fleet of three ships) and Don Pedro—then Emperor—decided to buy himself a new navy.

Well, sir, representatives of Dom Pedro purchased the El Cid, and that's where Captain Hawkins steps into the picture. The other officers of the American El Cid immediately resigned, but Third Mate Hawkins, being a dyed-in-the-wool adventurer, signed up with Dom Pedro and got himself a berth as captain of the Nictheroy, flagship and only ship of the Emperor's Imperial Navy. The Nictheroy was the new name of El Cid.

Captain Hawkins was a young man at the time, but he had already led an adventurous life around Panama, where he had worked for the French when they started—what we finished—the Panama Canal. Yellow fever drove him out of there and right into Brazilian history.

Well, by golly, the flagship Nictheroy—try and pronounce it—was turned into a battleship almost over night. Two guns were mounted on her wooden decks and in her bow was mounted the latest invention of the day—a dynamite cannon. Up to date only the inventor had dared fire this devastating weapon for the simple reason that it was just as liable to explode and blow up the man firing it as it was to blow up the enemy.

But it looked swell up there in the bow, Cap says, and Captain Hawkins knew the value of looks in the coffee revolution of the "gay nineties." Cap next made the rounds of the Bowery and gathered himself a hard-boiled crew of roughnecks, who were aching for a scrap, and set a course for Rio.



Well, sir, when the little steamer—I mean the flagship—steamed into the middle of hostilities in the harbor of Rio nobody wanted to take a chance on firing that dynamite cannon. The cannon was Captain Hawkins' "ace in the hole," and he knew if he could only get it working it might throw a scare into the enemy, so he decided to take a chance himself.

The hard-boiled Bowery crew ran for cover when Cap loaded the cannon with one of those new-fangled cartridges, but Cap tied a long string to her trigger and waited for a signal from Dom Pedro to fire. The signal came, and Cap closed his eyes and pulled the string. Cap says the gun was aimed somewhere in the general direction of the city.

Wham! That load of dynamite left the muzzle of the gun with a concussion that nearly turned the flagship bottom-side up. But she rolled back on her keel and the crew came out of their hiding places to see what had happened. Nobody had an idea where the shell would land, so they looked all about the harbor and city waiting for the explosion. They didn't have long to wait—and when it came—it was a wow!

Suddenly the whole top of a hill on a little island in the harbor rose straight up in the air—it looked like a volcano in violent eruption—a tremendous ring of black smoke shot thousands of feet into the air—and then, Cap says, the earthquake struck.

An ear-splitting roar made the Bowery crew drop to the deck in terror, and they dodged below decks as bits of debris began to rain on them.

Cliff says that his grandfather admitted he wasn't sure who was frightened the most—the captain and crew of the flagship or the rebels of Admiral Mello—but he was sure of one thing and that was—the rebel ships were fleeing for the open sea and rebel flags all over the town were coming down.

Victory had smiled on Captain Hawkins and the Imperial Navy with one shot, but the Cap was one of the most puzzled commanders who ever won a naval battle. He could not figure it all out. He had fired at the city and an island had blown up.

Captain Hawkins was still puzzled when a gayly decorated launch steamed up and the Emperor Dom Pedro himself boarded his ship and then and there congratulating him on his excellent marksmanship—appointed him Admiral of the Brazilian fleet!

It seems that Cap's haphazard shot from the dynamite cannon had landed—by some freak of luck—right in the middle of the rebel ammunition dump and ended the revolution then and there.

The American captain says he found himself a Brazilian hero overnight and blossomed out in gold-braided uniform with a big feather in his cap and spent his time flirting with the sloe-eyed senoritas of the Imperial Court.

Cap—now Lord Admiral of the Grand Fleet Hawkins—says he was entitled to a salary of $100 a month, which is a good salary—if you get it—but it seems that payday never came, and, according to Cliff, the Admiral had to go to parties so that he could eat.

So the Admiral finally said adios to the Emperor and went back to merchant ships and regular meals.

Can't you picture that sad farewell between Admiral and his Emperor? It makes me think of Napoleon's farewell to his Imperial Guard at Fontainbleu—except that Admiral Hawkins probably ended up his speech with—"a man's gotta eat."

Well, boys and girls, that was a long time ago, and today Brazil is a great, settled sister Republic of ours, and Brazilians themselves laugh at those amusing changes of government in the good old days. It's a great country today and no one knows it better than Captain Hawkins and I.

And so another adventure story come to a close, but I'll be back again tomorrow with a thriller—"Terror in the Wake of Mystery Explosion."

BRUNO

Witness Before GRAND JURY

By Associated Press

Flemington, N. J., March 22—Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck said he would ask the Hunterdon County Grand Jury today to return an indictment charging murder against Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the trial of Dorothy Rothrock Hauptmann.

Hauck said he would be heard before the grand jury.

For a New York reporter earlier today Hauptmann drew a plan indicating how he climbed a ladder to the nursery of the Charles A. Lindbergh home on the night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was stolen. He was paid.

In relating the story to a writer Hauptmann said he was at home at the time Hauck said he was at the cemetery.

REUNION

In Court Fails TO LAST

Although they had a happy reunion with their father and step mother in Newton court today, Elaine Farrell, nine, and her brother, Winston, seven, can't go home yet.

Judge William F. Paton held that they were neglected children and placed them temporarily in custody of Mrs. Cora Wellman, a probation officer.

The boy has gained 14 pounds and the girl nine pounds during the past month at the Home for Destitute Catholic Children on Harrison avenue, the court was told.

They had been sent to the home when their father, John L. Wallace, was jailed for 18 days for beating them.

AUSTEN LAKE on

State's Racing
Master Takes
Dogmen by Ear

MR. CHARLIE CONNORS, the Boston stock broker who lately inherited the State Race Board when General Charles Cole leaped overboard and swam ashore, is in the painful spot of being commissioner with practically nothing to commission.

Austen Lake

This is very mortifying to Mr. Connors, who has half an acre of Beacon street floor space, a swarm of dapper male clerks and an expensive outfit of office gear, like desks with electric buzzers, metal filing cabinets, adding machines and typewriters.

But there is nothing to file, or add, or type, and the young men just loll around in understuing attitudes, watching the State House pigeons and waiting for lunchtime and curfew.

So, being fed up on emptiness, today Mr. Connors is yanking five dog-track promoters to his bar, to ask why, for land's sakes, they did not start building their gorgeous dog parks before March 15, as required in the terms of their charters.

Now, in doing this, Mr. Connors knows the answers before asking. Because it is public knowledge that the prospective dog-track communities have been giving off Wild West yells, throwing legal hand grenades and making life very weary for the promoters.

So that the dog-men, who at first were very happy over their charters and had visions of making lovely profits in very short order, now do not wish to be hasty with their liquid money, lest the outraged people padlock their toy-town racing plants, or maybe dynamite them out by the roots.

* * *

Hasty Vote; Leisurely Repentance

THIS, OF COURSE, AMOUNTS to repentance by the people for voting rashly at the polls last November, when they willed dog and horse racing by a large majority in a furious mood of lid-lifting.

But now the people, in the cool, gray dawn of reason, are confessing that they did not know their own mind, are wishful to reconsider their morals and be protected against their own incompetence.

Thus Mr. Connors, with a keen ear for the ground hum of public opinion, may solve the popular panic, and the fluster of the promoters, by revoking all charters, as Governor Curley said would be logical.

But if he does this, it will give Mr. Connors and his swarm of male clerks even less to commission than they have at present, which is practically nothing.

Because the horse-track promoters, who started squabbling over the public sugar tree last November, are still saying cross, vulgar and uncouth words among themselves, a state of mutual mutiny which may stymie steed racing this summer.

So that, unless Mr. Connors can woo them together, there may be no milling of a happy, carefree crowd around the parimutuel wickets, no shabby moochers selling dubious forecasts on the winners, no muffled howls each afternoon and no out-patients' money for the state to skim.

In which case Mr. Connors will have something worth being mortified about.

Rear View of Ford Frick

CIRCUMSTANCE WAS ON parade in the person of young Ford Frick, the freshman president of the National League, during my recent visit to the Braves training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

There, while the Braves and Yankees played, Frick sat in a ringside box, surrounded by his official family and the trappings of pomp, a model of dignity with the launch-lines beside his mouth erased by the solemnity of his new-found glory.

There on the hard, pants-polished boards of the Waterfront press benches, Ford had sat only a year ago, swapping the spicy lingo of the men who tapped their portables and scratched their scalps for new ideas. It was a brazen, blasphemous crew of which lean Ford was a full member in good standing.

In the twelve-months interval, circumstance came to plate him over with gold leaf. To his own vast surprise, he was hoisted by the slack of his pants into the No. 1 job of the National League, $25,000 a year and an unlimited expense account.

And best of all, as certificate of his fellowship, not one of his old companions, who were still wearing off the nap of their clothes on the hard-pine press rows, begrudged him his good fortune, or said, while squinting through their cigarette fumes, "You squats a lucky stiff."

Yussel Had His Fingers Crossed

SOME OPEN INDIGNATION and a good deal of sly amusement is expressed over the photograph of Joe "Yussel the Muscle" Jacobs, Schmeling's Jewish manager, lifting his arm in the German state, or Nazi salute following his fighter's victory over Steve Hamas at Hamburg on March 10.

As a famed opportunist and a strangely timid little man for such a furious business, Jacobs performed the gesture most hated by his race. Yet when he landed in New York today he explained that, mentally, he had his fingers crossed and a silent, inward rassberry formed in the hollow of his cheek.

Well, under the same starry-eyed conditions that has turned many sensible Germans into emotional robots ruled by mass hysteria, what would you do if 25,000 pairs of eyes were focused upon you, blazing intolerance and inviting imagined insult?

It is only one of many little decisions that Max Baer, as world's fisticuff champion, must settle with his conscience before signing articles to risk his title inside the borders of Hitler's martial-daft land.

Cinema Standard Bearer

NOT A LITTLE JEALOUS of the good will which the American League harvested from its propaganda movie "Play Ball," which Umpire George Moriarty is still showing through the country, the National League proposes to film its own baseball record on an even grander scale this year.

I learn that Rabbit Maranville will be appointed to tour with the picture, lecturing as it unwinds, and that he will draw a pleasantly fat salary for this.

Thus, if Rab fails to revive his gimpy leg, which is several sizes smaller at the calf than his normal one and which still gives him great distress, he may be consoled at the thought of becoming his league's cinema standard bearer.

Charlie Cettine, Dorchester, vs. Johnny Buckley, Lexington.
Louis Barrisano, Newton, vs. Tony Bent, Cambridge.

FOUR ROUNDS

Dante Yanetti, Chelsea, vs. Joe McGuiness, Somerville.
Matty Bloom, Revere, vs. Joe Carroll, Worcester.

First bout, 8:15; main event, 10.

"Young" Stribling came North for his return bout with Mike McTigue. Stribling and McTigue first met at Columbus, Ga. McTigue's imported referee first gave him the decision and then called the bout a draw.

Mike and Joe Jacobs, his manager, escaped from Columbus on a milk train. In the return battle, held at Newark, the popular decision went to Stribling.

Godwin will receive a red-hot reception from McCoy, who is picked to win. The latter is the best boxer to come to the front in New England in recent years. He is a wide-open puncher, and has improved in his boxing.

Werther Arcelli, North End welterweight, will collide with Cocoa Kid of Hartford in the semifinal of eight rounds. Cocoa Kid is a hard puncher, and will try to pin a kayo smash on Arcelli's jaw. Arcelli is a first-class boxer and is the favorite.

ICE CARNIVAL OPENS AT ARENA

SKATING ELITE COMPETE

By Bill Connell

A parade of champions goes on in the Arena tonight, with the opening of the two-day World's Fair, annual skating carnival under the auspices of the Skating Club of Boston.

Maxie Herber, 15-year old German champion; Ernest Baier, also of Germany, runnerup for two years past; Vivi-Ann Hulten of Sweden, considered the world's finest dancer on skates; Ida Paper and Karl Zwack of Austria, world's pair ice champions, are foreigners here for the fair.

American headliners include Robbie Lee, 13-year-old U. S. men's senior skating champ; Roger Turner, many times U. S. champion, Maribel Vinson, U. S. champion; Suzanne Davis, last year's titlist, and Miss Vinson and George Hill, U. S. pair champions.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Frick, professional ice champions, hold feattured spots on the program.

DEAN SWIFT

AGAIN Wilson's BEST

IN FOURTH AT TROPICAL

By Dave Wilson

DEAN SWIFT—BEST BET

Tropical Park, Coral Gables, Fla., March 22—Dean Swift, a best bet which delivered the goods only a few days ago, is again given similar preference in the six furlongs of the fourth race here this afternoon.

FIRST RACE

Thunderstone, Squeeze Out, Smuggled In

THUNDERSTONE just missed copping the fleet Prince Drake last out. SQUEEZE OUT displayed a world of speed behind Moane Keala Wednesday. SMUGGLED IN is the choker's special.

SECOND RACE

Lookabout, Evening Hour, Peloria

LOOKABOUT was outmatched last time. EVENING HOUR displayed a nice effort in placing the latter day. PELORIA may be underrated.

THIRD RACE

Vera Cruz, High Image, Good Aim

VERA CRUZ, a brisk worker, has speed enough to hold this party safe. HIGH IMAGE has been raced into condition. Should be up to a good effort. GOOD AIM was never better.

FOURTH RACE.

Dean Swift, Erin Lill, Chance Ray

DEAN SWIFT was never out of a pull in his last race. No telling how good he may be right now. ERIN LAD was a tired colt paddling up to the wire. CHANCE RAY has taken it all. If he fans back to his brilliant trials.

FIFTH RACE

Hardware, Don Guzman, My Purchase

HARDWARE appears best under the weights and engagements. The boss trainer of Brin Jr., is said Saturday's best bet. DON GUZMAN is a winner of two straight races and, upon up on the probable favorite. MY PURCHASE for the remainder.

SIXTH RACE

Happy Find, Uncle Billy, Colorist

HAPPY FIND was victim of a wide-open affair. PERVIL, a closer, winner earlier in the meeting, should offer the opposition. DE VALERIA is a strong possibility.

SEVENTH RACE

Idle Along, Pervid, De Valera

IDLE ALONG figures the best in a wide-open affair. PERVIL, a closer, winner earlier in the meeting, should offer the opposition. DE VALERIA is a strong possibility.

SCHMELING, BAER IN JUNE TITLE BOUT

JACOBS Criticised by PRESS

NAZI SALUTE THE CAUSE

By Universal Service

New York, March 22—Max Baer and Max Schmeling will battle for the world's heavyweight championship at the Garden bowl late in June.

Arrangements for the bout were closed when Jacob Mike, manager of Schmeling, returned from Hamburg, Germany, and handed over a contract signed by Max Schmeling. The Garden merely had to sign the contract and give Max a check for $25,000 as a guarantee that he would appear.

Jacobs said he expects to be ready to sign formally some afternoon next week, after which he will start selling seats at once.

Among the many cables received at Jacobs' office was one from the boys on the S.S. Manhattan, the afternoon the one he heard most was about a war. How did he say? Giving the Nazi salute, of course, after the Schmeling bout's signing. Jacobs, of course, grinned.

"What would you do if you were standing there in the middle of the ring before a crowd of 25,000 people at saints and the band playing Deutschland Uber Alles, the German national anthem?"

TRADERS STUDY

Latest MONETARY Moves

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Latest Washington monetary developments call for close attention. It is entirely possible that a train of anti-inflationary events has been set in action that will change certain market policies.

The refunding of Libertys and the Treasury gold for silver swap with Mexico are worth studying. The latter seems aimed to bring the metal monetary stocks into the 25 per cent silver 75 per cent gold, called for in the Silver Purchase Act. The supply is now about 10 per cent 90 per cent.

* * *

First point to consider is that if the policy of getting silver by swap is carried very far it means the silver bullion market will not be affected as it would be by straight buying. Also the adjusted value of the required ratio by this method may be less silver will be needed than if the Treasury simply set out to buy up to the required limit. Further, the Treasury is in a fair way to become a competitor with gold miners. Since it is openly stated that more of the metal is on hand than is wanted, world gold markets will feel the weight of this added supply if the policy is extended.

E. W. Kemmerer

* * *

Notebook: It is obvious that there is a slight turn away from governmental hoarding of gold . . . Silver at the same time is not going to be bid for in an unthinking manner as some supposed . . . Top this off with the refunding operation and the answer is that inflation is fading, even ever so slightly, out of the picture . . . Market operators must now ask themselves if formerly powerful factors are still operating in favor of metal shares . . . At best we can only see them as the same with the hope events some months hence will renew their strength.

* * *

If we turn from the technical side of the money situation and devote time to the views of leading economists, there is added reason for asking if the proportion of funds in gold shares should not be cut down. Professor Edwin W. Kemmerer of Princeton is reported as saying the price of gold will rapidly rise in levels, that the cost of living will soar; and we wonder, if gold stabilization is near, if it would not be better to own variables, stocks, commodities, in fact, anything but gold. For the faster the former rise the fewer units it will require to buy gold.

* * *

It is an engaging problem. One that will hardly attract the attention of all investors and speculators. The advent of bonus votes favoring new currency issues will becloud the horizon for a time. But ultimately more sound and sensible schemes will prevail. Especially if it becomes apparent that inflationists are seizing upon the bonus to further their own plans. In the meanwhile we strongly consider using inflationary market outbursts as a chance to unload the higher priced metals.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW NATIONAL DIRECTOR

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

Lindbergh has dived into the lead in New England votes in the national Popular Pilot Poll and Rickenbacker is second according to tabulation of latest returns of Junior Birdmen and non-members of the organization.

Each new tabulation changes the standing of the pilots and indicates one aure thing. That is New England boys and girls are voting properly. They are exercising their right to their own opinion and really voting for the pilot they like the best.

A new tally will be presented in the Sunday Advertiser. It may show a surprising upset since hundreds of votes are reaching headquarters daily.

To vote, members should use the ballot on this page. Special non-member ballots may be obtained by filling in the address or writing a postal to Junior Birdmen, 100 Summer street, Boston, giving your name and full address.

This is important. All non-member ballots should be returned to headquarters as soon as they are filled out so the votes may be counted. Every boy and girl, between 10 and 21, can vote in this poll to find the most popular aviator in the country.

FIGHT IS ON For Wing Flag

The race for the wing banner for the first period has developed into a keen struggle by several squadrons. Those have used the Popular Pilot Poll to run up a high score in points, since each non-member's vote counts one.

The leaders in this race with the names of the squadrons, commanders and points to date are: 47 of Roxbury, "Eddie" Manning, 1618; 374 of East Boston, Santo Cassisa, 1018; 127 of Dorchester, sidney Worcester, 1009; 23 of New Bedford, Joseph La rosa, 875; 151 of Medford, Rhea Donnelly, 390; 288 of Dorchester, James J. Dris coll, 383; and 214 of Woonsocket, R. I., Hector Farland, 295.

Other commanders of squadrons in the Boston wing are: Raymond Zamora, of Minto, N. S., Squadron 337; Revere Emmonds, of 537 South street, Northington, 338; Woodward Fincher of 18 Middle street, Concord, 339; Francis Bosco of 32 Prescott street, East Boston, 340; Lawrence Sockalexis of 60 Old Town, Me., 341; Lawrence Downey of 60 Prince Edward Street, St. John, N. B., 342; and John Davitt of 316 Rebecca street, Fall River, 344.

Radio Questions and Answers

Q—What on earth has become of "Singin' Sam" with the deep voice, the fellow who sang about shaving cream?

R. H. D., of Roslindale.

A—He has been doing WOR duty and some New York work. At present, you will be interested to know, he is making ready for a new Friday morning series, to start April 5 and at 10:15 through WBZ waves. This time he will vocalize about paint and varnish.

Q—Can you tell us where the pair Olsen and Johnson are broadcasting?

CONCERNED, of Canton.

A—Right now they have a regular Friday evening entry over the WLW channel. It's at 8:15 and Gene Austin, another old timer, is with them.

Q—Who does the "Phantom Fingers" feature every morning at 8:45 on WAAB in Boston?

S. W., of Wollaston.

A—It's by Donald Van Wart.

Q—Where is the announcer Joseph Lopez who was a WNAC staff member not so long ago?

N. Y. Z., of Quincy.

A—Joe is now the station boss at Bridgeport, Ct. It's WICC and Joe has been away from local lanes nearly three years.

Q—Is that Carl Moore who talks when Linus Travers isn't on the Sunday Night Amateur Hour at Boston Opera House?

W. P. of Melrose.

A—No; you probably mean Edward Kasper. However, it is expected that Carl Moore, who has been playing the piano accompaniments for the artists, will take over the master of ceremony role this coming Sunday, if Travers leaves town for the week-end.

Q—Does Phil Baker live in New York city proper? A friend of ours says he has his home near Baltimore, Md. T. M. J. of Newburyport.

A—Phil maintains an apartment in N. Y. He also has a home in the Manhattan suburbs and one in Florida. Total of three.

Should Politicians Run the Banks? Does the Nation Want Wildcat Currency?

NOTHING touches the people so immediately as the fiscal or financial policy of the Government.

And yet the average man regards it as so beyond his ken that he makes no effort to understand it.

This is even true of many members of Congress who, despite their responsibility as elected representatives of the people, vote like sheep for a bill fundamentally affecting our credit and monetary system, if it only has a demagogic title or preamble, without the least perception of its practical operation.

The Administration's pending Banking Act of 1935 is a bill that demands the most careful study. It should not pass without the most complete popular understanding of its operation and effect.

To whisk it through the House and Senate, in obedience to Administration orders, would be a betrayal of duty for which no member of either House should permit himself to be answerable.

Title I is concerned with Federal deposit insurance.

Title III proposes certain amendments—many of them needed—of the current banking law, which is the Act of 1933.

While there are objections in detail to both Titles I and III, they are not broadly exceptionable and may be dismissed for the time being.

It is TITLE II which deserves the thoughtful study and careful reflection of every member of Congress.

* * *

SANDWICHED in between Titles I and III, it looks as if it was hoped to carry Title II, with its revolutionary changes in our banking system, across the goal line of enactment in a sort of "masked play" or "huddle," using the titles which precede and follow as cover-ups for Title II, which really carries the ball.

The primary objection to the bill is that it makes our banking and monetary system in very truth the FOOTBALL OF POLITICS.

This is axiomatic disaster. It has spelled ruin to every nation that has stooped to it.

The bill delegates to the President full authority to control the volume of currency and credit, without any declaration of what our policy from time to time may be.

Under its provisions the Federal Reserve System, instead of determining monetary policies with a view to the needs of industry and agriculture, will be used for experimentation and as a proving ground for every economic and monetary theory under the sun.

The theory of the Federal Reserve System that it should provide an elastic currency, expanding and contracting to meet the needs of business, is definitely abandoned.

The currency of the future may be even based upon Treasury deficits.

* * *

IT IS urged on behalf of the bill that there must be conscious and purposeful Government control of banking.

The pending measure proposes to vest that control in a POLITICALLY DOMINATED BODY.

If we have not taken complete leave of our senses we certainly, in times such as these, cannot afford to OPEN WIDE THE DOOR to the MOST UNSAFE BANKING that is CONCEIVABLE!

The "Crisis" in Europe

Editor of the Boston Evening American:

THERE is not going to be any war in Europe.

Neither does Italy.

Neither does Russia.

And neither does Germany.

Germany is not doing anything which she was not expected to do.

She is not doing anything that the other nations are not doing.

The Versailles treaty was a compact of victors to keep the vanquished in permanent subjection; but no one believed that Germany would remain in permanent subjection.

Everyone knew that there must come a time when Germany would assert and secure equal right and recognition among nations.

If France, England, and Italy wanted equality under disarmament, they could have had it.

AMERICA proposed disarmament, but the dominant European nations refused it.

Germany's action, therefore, is not in any sense a surprise to Europe, and any reader can see from the dispatches that there is no sincerity in the pretense of surprise and shock by England, France, Italy and Russia.

As a matter of plain fact, there is less likelihood of war since Germany has armed, than there was before.

There was always a chance for war in a subject Germany.

There was always danger of war in some attempt to further dismember a prostrate Germany.

FRANCE talks of putting a ring of steel around Germany.

France has ALREADY put a ring of steel around Germany; but the ring of steel is not going to be so aggressive against an armed Germany as it was against an unarmed Germany.

And Germany is going to be let alone more since she is armed than she has been at any time since the infliction on her of the Versailles Treaty.

General armament, therefore, is the next best thing to general disarmament; and general disarmament, although much to be desired, is apparently not obtainable at present.

America cannot possibly do any good; and if our government should interfere as ignorantly abroad as it interferes with the natural course of events here at home, it would probably only precipitate the calamity it would be endeavoring to avoid.

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Waterways Bill

The House Rivers and Harbors Committee deals kindly with New England in the matter of recommending improvements.

The Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut coasts are particularly well provided for this year.

Besides the projects approved, the War Department is ordered to make a study of others, from Plum Island to Manomet.

Shipping and other industries, along with employment, will benefit by the carrying out of the new program.

Time for That New Hat

Spring is here. So let us note that with the Winter have passed the gloomy predictions that it would be "the worst since the beginning of the Depression," and that it would bring with it all sorts of catastrophes.

Well, it's over, and there weren't any catastrophes.

Isn't There ANYTHING for Me?

If the Federal Government is going to spend $4,800,880,000 on public works projects, certainly the money should be spent upon projects that the nation needs and that will return future benefits.

Above all else, public school construction is needed—in some regions it is desperately needed—and nothing will pay bigger dividends in future citizenship.

During the whole depression period politics has starved education in order to protect patronage, reducing numerous public school systems to a hard-pressed plight.

President Roosevelt and the Administration should see to it that public school construction COMES FIRST in the allotment of any public works funds.

Why the New Deal Has Not Restored Prosperity

By B. C. FORBES

THE NEW DEAL was voted into power mainly on promises to restore prosperity, to enable the working classes to enjoy "life more abundant."

Alas, two years of New Deal activities find virtually one person for each family in the United States compelled to undergo the humiliating experience of subsisting on public charity.

More: The securities owned by upwards of 20,000,000 individuals and families who saved money have lately been shrinking dishearteningly in value; they have this month reached new low depths for the year, far below their market worth twelve months ago.

The monetary loss suffered by one group alone, investors in public utility securities, is authoritatively computed at $3,500,000,000 — three thousand five hundred millions of dollars.

No satisfactory progress is being made in reabsorbing the many millions of idle wage-earners, notwithstanding that since the present Administration took office our Federal debt has soared some $10,000,000,000.

CAPITAL-RAISING has been practically at a standstill.

Of late, such accepted economic yardsticks as railway freight, steel production, as well as security values, have been reflecting diminishing activity and confidence.

* * *

WHAT IS THE MATTER? WHAT IS THE EXPLANATION?

Palpably the New Deal, which started extremely auspiciously, is no longer functioning effectively.

Why?

Briefly, because it has developed faith-shattering faults.

* * *

INSTEAD of concentrating upon its originally-proclaimed objective of restoring employment and creating widely-diffused prosperity the New Deal has been concerning itself with multifarious revolutionary experiments; it has exhibited a paralyzing anti-business attitude; it has been assiduously seeking to destroy States' rights and the rights of individuals; it has revealed scant regard for the traditional inviolability of American property; it has arrogated to itself the untrammeled spending of billions of dollars of taxpayers' money, sometimes in ways which have incited the charge that votes are being "purchased."

It has been acting, as William Randolph Hearst recently pointed out, as if it regarded business, the employment-giver, as Public Enemy Number One.

* * *

SO long as such an "anti" course is followed, how can the New Dealers hope to fulfill their pledge to recreate better times, how can they hope to arrest the catastrophic shrivelling of investment values, how can they hope to revive America's characteristic confidence, how can they hope to curtail overspending of public funds, how can they hope to progress toward a balanced budget, HOW CAN THEY HOPE TO SHORTEN THE NATIONAL BREADLINE?

Stars and Stripes

That ominous sound from Europe is the Dove of Peace singing its regular Spring song.

The revolver was invented just 100 years ago. From small beginnings in Paterson, N. J., it is now in use throughout the entire underworld.

Centre Ossipee, N. H., dispatch says the fire department sped five miles in the wrong direction while a 1760 landmark burned. But the department must be credited with good intentions.

Stratosphering reveals a funny thing. Those who are down have to come up for air and those who are up have to come down for it.

Judge Ben Lindsey refused to grant divorces to the wife-swappers on the ground that wife-swapping is a violation of section 7 of the matrimonial code prohibiting collective bargaining.

Text For Today. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."—Proverbs 14:34. Suggested by the Rev. Oscar C. Griswold, Church of the Nazarene, Cambridge.

Story of Plottings

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The recent revolt of the Venezelists in Greece was verbally fought to a stalemate in New York city quite a while before the thunder of the guns.

Edwin C. Hill

In the Greek coffee houses in the West 50s there has been for months not only a grand symposium of argument and discussion, but close huddles in shadowed corners; gatherings of dark, furtive men, with an air of being engaged in something of tremendous and possibly illicit import.

Over a dish of cozo, smoking their nargolas in the ancient "kaphenion," Greeks who perhaps hadn't seen the homeland for decades were mysteriously informed, busy and watchful, planning strategy and contending again in political issues as old as Dionysius.

THE CUBAN JUNTA

Getting about in the night hours, with good eyes and ears and possibly an interpreter or two, one may find in New York a curtain-raiser to almost any major European ruction.

Since the influx of West Indians, brought in for war work, revolts, counter-revolts and revolutions within revolutions have been brewed by the Cubans in their cages in South Harlem.

The Cuban Junta in New York—and how could there be a junta without cafes?—has for a decade or more been the clearing house of stratagems devised by this faction or that.

Much of the Bolshevik seizure of Russia was plotted by Trotsky and his associates in a dingy little cafe in lower Second avenue.

The cafes of the Germar section of Yorkville, long before Hitler attained power, were forums of political discussion, stirred with an ardor and galvanized to a pitch of awareness and interest as high as that of any rendezvous of political groups in Berlin or Munich.

Emissaries of Fascism were busy in Italian cafes along Seventh avenue as early as 1920, before Mussolini's march on Rome.

HOW IT GOES

For some reason or other, the more open hole-in-the-wall cafe under repeal seems to invite the midnight conspirators more than did the speakeasies in prohibition days.

One would think it would be the other way about, with the necessarily furtive and secluded character of the latter.

But I am told by men whose business it is to keep an eye on such doings that somehow it is the old cafe life in which these aides to reaction or revolt traditionally flourish.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, March 22—Thoughts while strolling: Be fun to go slumming in Chinatown with Irving Berlin. Broadway boys who talk like Gus Edwards grid masters. Wish Walt Disney would give us an entire Donald Duck film. John Chapman is a ringer for Luther Reed ten years ago.

O. O. McIntyre

An arch lady jockeys her gentleman up to a Cartier window. And gazes wistfully. Add thin actors: Basil Rathbone. No more vendetta for me after seeing "Sequoia." A Chinese sing-songiness about Prince Matchabelli's last name. The movies bounce Walter Huston and zip! he becomes the foremost stage star.

Nobody gives a green hat thats like Margaret Whiteman. Ordangles one "everything's dandy" smile of Oliver Hardy. They almost have to chloroform Kathleen Norris to get her in a dressmaking establishment.

Got to be a Social Registerite to sing in the night clubs these days. Harold Ross' bride suggests Dresden china. New York's hardest working scrivener—Lois Long. No one has had courage to sport a pearl derby since Raymond Hitchcock went over the horizon.

Betzi Beston must be as tall as Charlotte Greenwood. Add unwieldly titles: The Princess of Thurn and Taxis. And handsome managing editors: Keats Speed. Ogden Nash is a fool for Angora cats. John O'Hara wears the Ring Lardner crown as interpreter of the American speech. Who remembers the Hauptmann trial?

If the pigeons are banished from Bryant Park it will be a wince for the lonely who gather at sundown to feed them. Paraphrasing Gertrude Stein: No pigeons in the grass, alas!

Pigeon feeders of large centers are a solemn guild, gentle souls happiness has brushed ever so lightly. Their vesperal hours gesture is often their only contact with friendliness. Even the pigeons' bright ungrateful eyes seem to soften in understanding.

Was it Charles Hanson Towne who poetized Bryant Park pigeons?

The blow-up of the two-year-old American Spectator ended still another wistful experiment in co-operative genius. As a critical literary monthly it was staffed with sundry and O, so arty big-wigs, such as Dreiser, Cabell, Nathan, O'Neill and Anderson, who were to write what they pleased with no hope of financial profits.

In a swan song the editors profess to be simply tired of the job, although claiming circulation and prestige had been growing by leaps and bounds. In non-literary circles we call that "apple sauce." Or: "Now, I'll tell one"

I was once in at the coverlet picking of a magazine that shrieked its mortal wound was inflicted by Wall Street. Even the staff took on the injured air of martyrdom.

I began to suspect the Morgan crowd for not being able to get a job—and boy was I getting hungry—for 14 months. The truth was its muck-raking style had zipped out like a light and a new editor drafted to save it arrived too late.

Words of Wise

Parents are responsible for the proper education and discipline of their children. Parental responsibility is a fundamental principle of life.—Canon Streator.
